EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

How is the "Betty and the baby" fund progressing?

THIS is the season for rakes to come to the front.

WHY not punish the persons who dared to sentence Sergeant Mason?

HURRAH! for the Beaver boom. It has become a tremendous peal of thunder.

OUR exports of breadstuffs this March were little more than half what they were in March, 1881.

THE Republican papers are fairly divided on the question whether Minister Lowell should be recalled, but all agree that he is a good poet.

MRS. TELLER, the wife of the new Secretary, is tall and slender, with black hair and the blackest of black eyes, and is the possessor of an unusually gentle and attractive manner.

GEORGIA pays less for the support of her public schools than any state in the Union. She must branch out in that direction or her sister states will advance and leave her behind. Popular education tells in time.

A NEWSPAPER that is not inclined to look with disfavor upon the scamp that mutilated Field's monument to the British spy, says that the next thing this man Field will be doing will be to visit the Holy Land and erect a monument to Judas Iscariot.

POLYGAMY received another staggering blow last week in the vote taken in Congress which leaves Mr. Cannon out in the cold. Cannon has long figured as "the brains of the Mormon Church." But it is bad for the brains of the Mormon Church when, as in this instance, they come into collision with the conscience of the American people.

THE Prohibitionists in Wisconsin talk about carrying the fierce fight on the temperance question into the Congressional elections. At a recent consultation of some prominent members of the party, it is said to have been decided to nominate candidates for Congress in some if not all, the districts of the State, unless the Republicans nominate men in sympathy with prohibition.

RECENT news from Arizona reports that Territory as swarming with American outlaws, who render mining business extremely dangerous, and have put a stop to business enterprise, and are driving capital away from the Territory. There are vehement demands that the government should be authorized to proclaim martial law, in order to get rid of the ruffians.

OSCAR WILDE is stated to have made about twenty-five thousand dollars so far by his American æsthetic tour. That's the kind of a golden sunflower that he can thoroughly appreciate. For a sort of a nillywilly lily-like lazy life, that isn't so bad a product, it must be admitted. Mr. Wilde may be a crank, but there must be a very large majority of his kin scattered around in these United States.

EX POSTMASTER GENERAL JAMES' likeness serves in the west to represent Jesse James, the outlaw. A Milwaukee paper add as comments: 'The above is as accurate a likeness as any which has been printed of Jesse James, the famous, or rather infamous, Missouri bush-whacker and train robber.' The ex-official had better steer clear of that section, or they will take him for the dead outlaw and shoot him on sight.

The Indians.

The new Secretary of the Interior has a new plan to carry out in relation to the Indians, and the Harrisburg Telegraph truthfully says this about his little scheme:

Secretary Teller has announced a new policy for the government of the Indian tribes which he thinks ought to be first organized on an industrial basis before an attempt is made to render them literary in their tastes. On this policy he proposes to test the capacity of the tribes to work. But the trouble has been that no policy has ever had a long enough test to produce results of an intelligent character in Indian affairs. We have had the army policy, the Quaker policy, the literary policy, and now Secretary Teller proposes an industrial policy. About the time he has fairly organized his plan, a new head of the Interior Department will be at work devising still another policy, and in the meantime the Government will be spending millions of dollars annually in these several experiments, while the Red Man will retrograde in all that ought to tend to his civilization and usefulness to himself.

The only way to manage the Indians right, doing justice to them and at the same time to others, is to reverse the whole past policy of the government in relation to them; and one of the first steps in this direction would be to acknowledge that they are men who have rights just the same as we have—the right to personal freedom, the right to travel without restraint, the right to work, the right to pay taxes, the right to be held amenable to the law if they violate it, the right to vote and the right to send their children to the public schools the same as any other man. In order that they may be brought under the restraining influence of the law, as soon as a tribe violates present treaties force should be sent against them sufficient to remove the whole tribe to eastern towns and cities where they can be distributed, a few here and there long distances apart, so that it would be impossible for them to gather again in a body. Here they would be surrounded by the customs of civilization and the power to live according to their savage customs entirely taken away from them. Forced as they would be to live in houses, the desire to surround themselves with some of the comforts which they see their white neighbors possess might enter their minds and hearts, which if it did would be, in so much, an incentive to industry. Then, again, the civilizing influence of the Gospel could be exerted directly upon them and some of them might become members of churches, which would tend to their education. Then, again, their children would be brought near to good schools, and compulsory education could be forced upon them by law, so that the coming generations would be better men and give the government no more trouble than any other citizens. If removing every turbulent tribe East was the settled policy of the government, as soon as they violated in any particular a treaty, or made trouble or war upon the whites, holding the whole tribe responsible for the acts of any parts of it, tribes that did not want to be removed or feared such removal would be very careful to avoid trouble, so that in any event border Indian wars would cease. Of course, with this policy must go all Indian agents not absolutely required to dispense national bounties and the abolition of all such bounties as soon as possible. Stop feeding the Indians like a lot of paupers and make them depend upon their own exertions, then shall we do justice to them and to ourselves. Their hunting grounds are being encroached upon every year; their game is disappearing, and finally they must become more industrious in those pursuits that civilized people live by, or the government must feed them forever, or they must starve. We would say move them East and force them to become like civilized human beings. Such a policy in time of course would end all jobbery, the avocation of thieving Indian agents would be gone, and in not a very long time perpetual peace would reign upon the borders; the country would be open to improvement and development, and all the vexed questions in relation to our aboriginal tribe would cease, and every man with a human heart should hail the day of its adoption.

Shall the Slate Stand Unbroken?

There have been suggestions and rumors of an effort on the part of earnest and patriotic Republicans, who are deeply solicitous for Republican success, to break the slate supposed to be prepared for the Harrisburg Convention. In view of these hints, what is wise and practicable?

So far as General Beaver is concerned, the action of the Convention is clearly foreshadowed. It is apparent to every intelligent and candid observer that he is unmistakably the choice of a large majority of the party. The Press has been in no haste to anticipate the public judgment, or to treat the nomination for Governor as settled. It has preferred that the sentiment of the party should freely express itself, that its honest and independent choice should be made manifest, and that the verdict thus pronounced should be frankly accepted.

This sentiment has now been plainly indicated, and there is no mistaking where it points. The intelligent and earnest Republican papers of the State are in the main a fair index of the public feeling, and the poll which the Press has made of their choice shows a very emphatic majority for General Beaver. The same result appears in the election of delegates. Among a hundred and forty delegates already named, he can probably muster a hundred and twenty. The progress of the canvass has clearly demonstrated that he is accepted by the body of the party as the coming candidate, and whatever opposition develops itself will come outside of the party organization.—Philadelphia Press.

GUITEAU'S family still contrive to keep themselves and the question of the disposal of his effects and his body before the public. 'If they had all died twenty-five years ago,' the poor wretch cried spasmodically the other day, 'what a Godsend it would have been for me!' He might have added, and for the country. The whole family offer a singular study in human nature, and an example of the prominence to which a morbid, almost insane, desire for notoriety will elevate its possessors without any backing of intellect or moral sense. Nothing but such an hereditary craze of self-conceit could have blinded all the Guiteaus to the fact that the only decent course for them after the trial was to get into obscurity as soon as possible. Whether they will further disgrace the country by the sale and exhibition of the murderer's body is not yet certain. We must bear them a little longer. The plague of insects was sent upon Egypt after the blood, and both were for its sins.

IRISH ardor for the cause that the tenantry have at heart is shown in the amount of money put at the service of the League by sympathizers. Eight hundred and thirty thousand dollars expended, and within a fraction of $300,000 on hand, attest a good deal of faith on the part of the sympathizers with the struggling Leaguers. There is a significant contrast in the expenditures for coercion and the cost of passive resistance to it. By a whimsical chance the Government and the League make their statements simultaneously, and while it has taken less than a million to prove to the illiberal elements of England that Ireland will never be pacified until local rule is restored, the cost of keeping up a semblance of administrative machinery has gone far into the millions of pounds.

Gen. Butler's Anti-Chinese Letter.

The census statistics bear witness to the superior fertility of the naturalized over the native families of Massachusetts in the increase and multiplication of mankind. This well certified fact has led General B. F. Butler sometimes to declare that he expects to live to be elected Governor of that State by the votes of children of Irish immigrants, several trials having proved that he is not sufficiently a favorite with older settlers. It is by no means a chimerical calculation, and although the General is in his sixty-fourth year he testifies his faith in it by pandering to the parents of his growing supporters on every expedient occasion. Nothing was surer than that he would volunteer an argument for the exclusion of Chinese from the United States when it was apparent that the prejudices of the Irish born population were running that way.

But we think that the General has overdone his business this time—first, in painting a picture of the merits of Chinese workingmen, which, if it is accurate, comes close to putting both Irish born and native workingmen to shame by comparison, and second, by founding the argument on a fact which in part would apply to banish nine-tenths of the Irish immigrants if it warrants the conclusion the General draws from it—as we do not believe it does. Here is General Butler's description of the Chinese in this country. He says:—

Two years since I went to the Pacific coast, and one of my errands was to examine for myself the condition of the Chinese, and whether it was desirable that they should or should not come here. After careful investigation I found that Chinamen were among the very best laboring men on the coast in all branches of industry, whether manufacturing, mining, domestic or agricultural; that to a remarkable degree, as a whole, they were honest, and in their vocations exceedingly intelligent; that they were temperate and as a rule peaceful, and that they were not underbidding labor so soon as they found what their labor was worth. I also found that they were very thrifty, economical in their habits and cleanly in their persons as a rule, and because of these traits were rapidly absorbing the employments in all laboring and menchanical work.

Now, what is the reason why he would prohibit 'honest, exceedingly intelligent, temperate, peaceful, thrifty and cleanly' workingmen from coming here? It is because they send part of their surplus earnings to help the 'old folks at home,' just as nine-tenths of the virtuous and affectionate Irish-born immigrants do; and also because most of them find permanent abode in the United States so unattractive that they ultimately return to China, taking the remainder of their savings along. That is his sole reason, and he contends that it is enough.

We think that, on the contrary, any unprejudiced acceptor of the General's description of Chinese workingmen can extract a much sounder argument to the effect that the federal and State governments should rather exert themselves to invite such a valuable immigration to the United States and to anchor it here. If the Chinese persist in going back it must be for want of sufficient inducements to stay. We do not suffer them to be naturalized; we do not admit them to the privileges of the land laws, which attract other immigrants to become permanent settlers; we keep them 'clannish' by being 'clannish' toward them; we do not afford them the security of their lives, limbs and property which is their due. Remembering the infamous personal indignities and outrages which have been inflicted on the Chinese in the Pacific States and Territories, not only by 'hoodlums' but under the guise of law, like the ordinance to cut off their cues in San Francisco and the multitude of discreditable attempts by the Legislature of California to infringe their treaty rights, what wonder that they want to go back to a land which they have good cause to esteem more civilized than this, after by honesty, intelligence, temperance, peacefulness, thrift and cleanliness (General Butler's own words) they have secured a competency for the remainder of their days!—N. Y. Herald.

"Jeffersonianism."

The latest artful dodge and "forlorn hope" of the Democracy, is a return to the principles of Jefferson. When this intelligence reaches the shades of the departed, no wonder if the "Sage of Monticello" should rise from the grave where he has been resting in peace for nearly fifty-six years, and drive the intruders from his sacred abode.

It is a good thing to have some subterfuge to fall back on when everything else fails; but an attempt to cement together the scattered fragments of that dismembered and aimless party with the ashes of a dead patriot, is a sorrowful mixing of incongruous elements.

Democracy has followed the trail of the Republicans for twenty years; at first denouncing, then going back to some trite policy, occasionally near enough to see the Republican coat-tail cutting around the corner, until in its tortuous path it can find nothing to hang on to.

Sometimes there is successful strategy in a political flank movement, but not in an age of steam engines and telephones. Traveling by stage coach is infinitely better than walking, but he who lets the lightning express get away from him today, will not even find a stage coach to help him on his way.

While the Democrats are loitering around the tomb of Jefferson, the first intimation of their lost cause will be the music of victory by the Republican orchestra.

PERHAPS even the benignant Mr. Frelinghuysen may come to see that however sweet and good the doctrine of turning the untouched cheek to share the chastening slap of its fellow, the maxim does not work in diplomacy. The status brought about in Peru and Chili by the abdicative policy of the present head of the Cabinet is illustrated by the grotesque pretension of Chili to not only regulate the entire economy of Peru, but lay down the law to our helpless diplomats, and even prescribe to our naval forces the manner and means by which they shall receive their mails from Washington. At present our navy is dependent upon the British packets by command of the Chilian Government. The next step will not unlikely be an order to salute the British flag when it appears in the vicinity of an American man-of-war.—Philadelphia Press.

LORD BEACONSFIELD'S admirers are reported to have honored his memory on the anniversary of his death by pinning primroses in their button-holes. The Conservative statesman, it seems, as well as Mr. Oscar Wilde, had his favorite flower. A less fantastic but more edifying token of remembrance would have been a day of sober reflection on the dangerous tendencies of partisan leadership like Lord Salisbury's. Lord Beaconsfield was not a trustworthy Premier, but as a political leader his conduct was always swayed by patriotic considerations. The safety and welfare of the country were never sacrificed to partisan advantage. It is not so now, as sober-minded Conservatives are forced to admit.

Walt Whitman's Æsthetic Den.

The room in America which has most impressed me was a little bare whitewashed room in Camden town, where I met Walt Whitman, whom I admire intensely. There was a big chair for him and a little stool for me, a pine table on which was a copy of Shakespeare, translation of Dante and a cruse of water. Sunlight filled the room, and over the roofs of the houses opposite were the masts of the ships that lay in the river. But then the poet needs no rose to blossom on his walls for him, because he carries nature always in his heart. This room contains all the simple conditions for art, sunlight, good air, pure water, a sight of ships and the poet's work.—Oscar Wilde in Cincinnati Enquirer.

GENERAL NOTES.

THE 1st "revival" in England is Della Robbia ware, glazed earthenware panels for exterior decoration.

"JESSE would have been an honor to his country," said Mrs. James, "if the officers had only let him alone."

THE "underground isthmus" is what the Pall Mall Gazette calls the proposed tunnel between England and France.

PROTECTION for Australia is called a theoretical protest against the abandonment of the soil to the great sheep farmers.

"THIRTY years hence," says the London Spectator, "English fortunes will appear very paltry compared with American."

ENGLISH soldiers do not like life in semi-tropical colonies, and do not have the feeling that they are defending their country.

THE Boston Herald declares that every person pays $10 a year to maintain protection. Thanks to protection, they can afford it.

SENATOR CAMERON'S hand is seen by the indignant Delaware newspapers in the retirement of Postmaster Pyle, of Wilmington.

"IF Senator Cameron should resign, which Heaven forbid!" the Denver Tribune does not think that Senator Mitchell will resign, too.

THE entire cotton spinning department of the lower Pacific mill at Lawrence, Mass., was in operation on Wednesday for the first time since the strike.

MARRIED, at Simsbury, Conn., Joseph R. Toy, aged 72, a widower since last September to Mary Toy, his daughter-in-law, a widow since March, aged 30.

CONGRESSMAN ROBESON has a private room in the Capitol at Washington by favor of Speaker Keifer. In order to get the room Mr. Keifer had to turn the doorkeeper and reporter, old-time occupants, out of it.

GENERAL POPE has been sued by Captain Payne, of Oklahoma fame, for false arrest and imprisonment. The plaintiff asks $25,000 damages, and the Levenworth people expect exciting scenes at the trial on May 2.

THE latest reports from the fruit growing districts of Virginia, Michigan and Arkansas indicate that the crops suffered but very little damage from the recent cold weather.

THE New Orleans (La.) Times-Democrat prints the testimony of several persons to show that that city was visited by an earthquake shock at 11 o'clock on Tuesday night, the 11th inst.

JAMES C. POWERS, a Universalist clergyman, who was sentenced last December to the house of correction at Dedham, Mass., for ten months on a charge of vagrancy, was pardoned by Governor Long.

NEVADA papers are telling of a boy baby in that State which weighed eight ounces only at birth. The story is a very circumstantial one, but its first publication was suspiciously near the 1st of April.

JAMES GORDON BENNETT has returned from Europe to New York, where he expects to remain until the completion of his new yacht, Momouna. It is understood that he expects to cross the Atlantic in the yacht this summer.

GENERAL STONEMAN, who has been mentioned prominently in connection with the Democratic candidacy for Governar of California, is said to have been dropped by the politicians of his party. His boom was predicted altogether on the anti-railroad cry.

IN the Massachusetts house of representatives, on Wednesday, the committee to which was referred the petition of certain atheists for legislation providing that disbelief in God may not effect the credibility of a witness, was granted "leave to withdraw."

IT IS said that the "whipping-post bill" recently passed by the Maryland Legislature for the special benefit of wife-beaters has already produced a salutary impression upon that class of ruffians. Having no niggers to wollop, and not daring to wollop their wives, life must indeed seem to them a dreary pilgrimage.

CHARLES HENRY HITCHCOCK, Hall Professor of Geology and Mineralogy in Dartmouth College, is not yet forty-six years of age, but his published writings include one hundred and nineteen books and papers, not embracing contributions to encyclopedias. He has also prepared or assisted in preparing twelve geological maps.

THIS seems to be a good year for the maternal instincts of animals in captivity. The advent of a baby elephant and a baby tapir has already electrified two continents, and now a double-humped Bactrian camel has presented Mr. Forepaugh with an ugly miniature of herself. This is a rare though not unprecedented occurrence.

AFTER much thinking the new bell for St Paul's has been declared too big for conveyance by rail from Loughborough to London, and will therefore be transported upon a vehicle specially constructed for the purpose. There is some fear that the great bell will break down a bridge or two in its journey to the capital. It is expected to be in place by Whitsuntide, if no accident befall it in the meantime.

THE widow of Conductor Westfall, who was murdered by Jesse James, is living in poverty at Plattsburg, Mo. It is said that she has never received a cent from the railroad company in defence of whose property her husband died but a subscription for her benefit has been started. Doubtless, however, many persons will prefer to contribute to the fund for Mrs. Jesse James which is now collecting in Sedalia and already amounts to about $300.

THEATRICAL managers in this country will open their eyes wide at hearing the complaint upon which Sarah Bernhardt was recently summoned to appear before a police justice in Rome. For her performance on March 20th more tickets had been sold than there were seats in the theatre, and, in consequence, a number of persons had to stand. For this both actress and manager were summoned. The former, who did not appear in person, was fined 40 lire and costs; the latter was let off.

THE BUGLE NOTES OF SPRING.

Now Winter, on his ice-bound car,
Is rattling north, o'er crag and scar;
The thrush and blackbird cheery sing,
Blowing the bugle notes of Spring—
Saying, "Coming! coming! coming!
The Spring is coming, man, to thee!"

I've heard for many a year, ah, me!
Those bugle notes, so wild and free;
And tho' each year its wrinkle throws,
That music aye the sweeter grows,
Saying, "Coming! coming! coming!
Perennial youth I bring with me."

The celandine's bright cup of gold
Is nestling by the brooklet cold;
The coltsfoot to the warming days
Is streaming back its yellow rays,
Saying, "Coming! coming! coming!
Sweet Flora cometh, fair to see."

The chestnut bursts its shining hoods,
The poplar scents the leafing woods,
Where cheerfully, among the boughs,
The birds are warbling tender vows,
Saying, "Coming! coming! coming!
And spend the Summer, wild and free."

And my dull muse it fain would sing
Of the bonnie bugle notes of Spring:—
"O blackbird, in thy ecstacy,
Chant thy loud clarion cheerily!
While humming! humming! humming!
The woods repeat thy song for me."

A TROUTING IDYL.

"I go a-fishing."—JOHN xxi., 3.

A line,
A hook,
A rod,
A brook,
A man absorbed in fishing:
A cast,
A bite,
"A trout?"
"You're right;
For this I have been wishing."

In camp
To lie,
With trout
To fry,
Farewell to cares and sadness!
No care,
No strife
In such
A life,
What health and rest and gladness:

Then come
With me,
Away
We'll flee,
And spend a month together,
By stream
And lake
Sly trout
We'll take,
And sleep in stormy weather.

SWEET DAY.

Stay sweet day, for thou art fair,
Fair and full and calm;
Crowned, through all thy golden hours,
With love's brightest, richest flowers,
Strong in faith's unshaken powers,
Blessed in hope's pure balm.

Stay, what chance and change may wait,
As you glide away;
Now is all so glad and bright;
Now we breathe in sure delight;
Now we laugh in fate's despite;
Stay with us sweet day.

Ah, she cannot, may not, stop;
All things must decay;
Then with heart and head and will,
Take the joy that lingers still,
Prize the pause in wrong and ill,
Prize the passing day.

Our Story Teller.

Needle and Thread.

'An old bachelor?' inquired Honora Maywood. 'Are you very sure that he is an old bachelor?'

'That's what he told me, just in so many word,' said Mrs Pennypacker who stood on the threshold of her best room, with her head tied up in a pocket handkerchief, and a hair broom in her hand, wherewith she gesticulated, after a tragic fashion, as she talked, while Miss Maywood, tall and slender as a wild lily, stood in the hall, with a roll of music under her arm, and her slight figure wrapped in a shabby black shawl. 'And he's willing to pay my price, cash, every Sunday night. Never attempted to beat me down a penny, it you'll believe it, my dear. He drinks only English breakfast tea, and he wants his pie crust made with the best Alderney butter instead of lard, as is good enough for other people; and he must have ventilators to all the windows, and an open grate instead of the base burning stove; and—I hope you'll not be offended, dear—but he particularly dislikes a piano.'

'Dislikes a piano?' said the little music teacher, reddening in spite of herself.

'And he says, says he, 'I hope Mrs. Pennypacker, that there is no piano in the house. A piano,' says he, 'plays the deuce with my nervous system, with its everlasting tum, tum!' These were his words, my dear. So, my dear, I'd be grateful if you wouldn't mind doing your practicing until he's out for his daily walk—from one to three, just as regular as the clock,'

Miss Maywood looked piteously up in the landlady's face.

'I will do anything to oblige you Mrs. Pennypacker,' she said earnestly. 'I have not forgotten how very much I am indebted to you, both in actual money, and in kindness, which money can never repay.'

'My dear, don't say a word.' said Mrs. Pennypacker, hastily, 'You have been sick, and you've got a little behind-hand, and it's quite natural you should be a little low spirited now and then. But you must not get discouraged. And you are quite welcome to stay on here until you're able to settle up your little account.'

Honora Maywood sighed as she thought how often her little advertisement had been inserted in the daily newspapers without attracting the least notice from the world of patrons and pupils. There were so many "capable music teachers, willing to give lesson at moderate prices," nowadays, and how was any one to know how very much she needed the money?

And, as time crept on and no pupils came, Honora began to ask herself seriously whether she should go out in some menial capacity, or stay genteelly at home and starve.

'Clothes, ma'am.'

Honora started from her revery as the washerwoman's stumpy little girl banged herself, like a human battering-ram, up against the door, with a preposterously large basket on her arm

'Yes,' said Honora, coloring. 'Put them down, Sally. But I—I'm afraid it isn't convenient for me to pay your mother to-day.'

'Mother didn't say nothing 'bout the pay,' said Sally, 'she said I was to leave the clothes, with her 'umble duty, and she 'oped they'd suit; but it was that damp on Monday and Tuesday as starch wouldn't stick. And she 'opes you'll excuse all mistakes, as they'll be done better next time.'

'I dare say they are quite right,' said Honora, as she marvelled at this unexpected access of courtesy on the part of her Milesian laundress.

'But when Sally had stumped off down stairs, her flapping slippers beating a sort of tattoo as she went, Miss Maywood took off the fringed towel that covered that basket of clothes, and gave a little start.

'Shirts,' said Honora, 'and socks, and turn-over collars No. 16, and great big pocket handkerchiefs, like the sails of a ship, and white vests, and goodness me, what does it all mean? Mrs. Mulvey has sent me some gentleman's wardrobe by mistake. I must send these things back at once.'

But then Miss Maywood looked down at the articles thoughtfully.

'I never had a brother,' mused Miss Maywood, 'and I can't remember my father; but of this I am quite certain—if I had either one or the other, I should thank any girl to mend their dilapidated wardrobes, if they looked like this. And Mrs. Mulvey can't send before night, and unfortunately I've nothing to do, so I'll just mend this poor fellow's clothes, whoever he may be. A half starved theological student, perhaps; training for the Polynesian Island, or, perhaps a newspaper reporter, or a pale clerk, under the skylight of some dry goods house. At all events he is worse off than I am, for he cannot mend his own clothes, and I can.'

And the smiles dimpled around Honora Maywood's little rosebud of a mouth, as she sat down to darn holes, sew on tapes, and insert patches.

'He'll never know who did it,' said Honora to herself, 'but I dare say he'll be thankful; and if one can get a chance to do a little good in this world, he ought not to grudge one's time and trouble.'

And as Honora stitched away, she mused sadly whether or not she ought to accept a position which had offered itself of assistant matron in an orphan asylum, where the work would be almost unendurable, and the pay next to nothing, with no Sundays or holidays, and a ladies' committee, consisting of three starched old maids, to 'sit' upon her the first Friday of every month.

'I almost think I'd starve,' said Honora. 'But dear me! starving is a serious business, when one comes to consider it face to face.'

Sally Mulvey came back, puffing and blowing like a human whale, in about two hours.

'Mother said she sent the wrong basket,' said she breathlessly.

'I thought it very probable, Sallie,' said Miss Maywood.

'And mother's compliments,' added Sally, 'and she can't undertake your things no longer, because she does a cash business, and there ain't nothing been paid on your account ever since last June.'

Honora felt herself growing scarlet.

'I am very sorry, Sally,' said she. 'Please tell your mother I will settle my bill as soon as I possibly can.'

Sally flounced out of the room, red and indignant, like an over-charged thunder-cloud, and poor little Honora, dropping her head on her hands, burst into tears.

'Pretty girl that—very pretty indeed,' remarked Mr. Roderick, an old bachelor, to Mrs. Pennypacker, the landlady.

'Do you mean——'

'I mean the young lady boarder of yours that I see on the stairs now and then,' explained Mr. Roderick. 'Nice figure—big, soft eyes, like a gazelle. I believe some one told me she was a music teacher. Is she?'

'That's her profession,' answered Mrs. Pennypacker. 'But there ain't many pupils as wants tuition, and poor little dear, she has had a hard time of it.'

'Humph!' grunted Mr. Roderick. 'What fools women are not to have a regular profession! If I had a daughter, I'd bring her up a self-supporting institution!'

And Mr. Roderick disappeared into his room, in the midst whereof stood a girl with flapping slippers, a pretentious shawl and a bonnet which had originally been intended for a woman twice her size.

'Who are you, my good girl?' demanded Mr. Roderick.

'Please sir, I'm Sally, the washerwoman's Sally,' was the response.

'And what do you want here?'

'Please, sir, I've come to bring your things,' said Sally, chattering off her lesson like a parrot. 'And, please, sir, her 'umble duty, and she hopes they'll suit, but it was that damp and muggy Monday and Tuesday as starch wouldn't stick; and she hopes you'll excuse all mistakes, as they shall be done better next time, sir.'

'Who mended them?' demanded Mr. Roderick, whose hawk eyes had caught sight of the dainty needlework upon his garments.'

'Nobody mended 'em,' said Sally. 'And mother says its easy to see as the new gent is a bachelor, on account of the holes in his heels and toes, and strings off his dickeys.'

'I can tell you who mended 'em,' said Mrs. Pennypacker, 'for I see her at it, the pretty dear!—Miss Maywood. And says she, 'I don't know whose they are, Mrs. Pennypacker; but they need mending, and a kind action never comes amiss.' No more it does, bless her!'

'Humph!' said Mr. Roderick; she's right—no more it does. And she's a regular scientist at the needle, is Miss Maywood. Just look at that patch, Mrs. Pennypacker. Euclid's Geometry couldn't produce a straighter line or truer angles. See the toe of that stocking! It's like a piece of Gobelin tapestry. That is the way I like to see things done!'

And Mr. Roderick never rested until he had been formally introduced to Honora Maywood, and thanked her with equal formality for the good offices she had rendered him.

* * * *

It was a golden October evening that Honora came down into the kitchen where Mrs Pennypacker was baking pies for her eccentric boarder, with the crust made of the best Alderny butter instead of lard.

'Oh, dear! oh dear!' sighed Mrs. Pennypacker, 'what an awful thing it is to be an old bachelor, to be sure!'

'He won't be a bachelor much longer,' said Honora, laughing and coloring as she laid her cheek on the landlady's shoulder.

'What do you mean?'

'He has asked me to marry him after a fortnight's acquaintance. He says that a girl who can mend stockings as I do needs no other test. And he says he loves me; and—and—'

'Well?'

'I almost think I love him!' whispered Honora.

And so the problem of Honora's solitary life was solved, and through the magic influence of needle and thread.

The Heart of a Child.

The other day a curious old woman, having a bundle in her hand and walking with a painful effort, sat down on a step to rest. She was curious because her garments were neat and clean, though threadbare, and curious because a smile crossed her wrinkled face as children passed her. It might have been this smile that attracted a group of three little ones, the oldest about nine. They all stood in a row in front of the old woman, saying never a word but watching her face. The smile brightened, lingered, and then faded suddenly away, and a corner of the old calico apron went up to wipe away a tear. Then the eldest child stepped forward and asked:

'Are you sorry because you haven't got any children?'

'I—I had children once, but they are all dead!' whispered the woman, a sob in her throat.

'I'm awfully sorry' said the little girl, as her own chin quivered. 'I'd give you one of my little brothers here, but you see I haven't got but two, and I don't believe I'd like to spare one.' 'God bless you, child, bless you forever!' sobbed the old woman, and for a full minute her face was buried in her apron.

'But I'll tell you what I'll do,' seriously continued the child. 'You may kiss us all once, and if little Ben isn't afraid you may kiss him four times, for he's just as sweet as candy.'

Pedestrians who saw the three well dressed children put their arms around that old woman's neck and kiss her were greatly puzzled. They didn't know the hearts of children, and they didn't hear the woman's words as she rose to go.

'O! children, I'm only a poor old woman, believing I'd nothing to live for, but you've give me a lighter heart than I've had for ten years.' —Ex.

"Your honor." said the foreman of a jury when given the verdict, "we find the man who stole the horse not guilty."

A New Type-Setting Machine.

Among the numerous companies seeking charters this year is one for the manufacture of type-setting machines. For several years, in a locked room at Colt's works, where only those having special permits were permitted to penetrate, a force of men have been at work under directions of the inventor, completing a wonderful machine, which is said now to have reached perfection. It is a marvelous piece of mechanism, both for what it does and for the simplicity of its parts. There is a key-board as of a piano, with the alphabet and numerals, with combinations of letters and short words frequently used. A word of six or seven letters can be put in type by a skilled operator in as little time as an ordinary compositor would take to move his hand from his stick to his case. It sets up this type, arranges them in the shape of a page or column, justifies the lines, divides words, etc., with perfect ease. But more than this, no matter how fast the type may be set the machinery is distributing type still more rapidly, so that the cases are never empty. That is to say, the machine, under the hands of a skillful manipulator, does easily the work of three or four compositors. So many machines that have been made for this purpose have proved failures, that it requires much faith to believe that complete success has at last been achieved, but so the gentlemen interested believe, and most of the type experts who are allowed to inspect the machine seem to be convinced. The company has already received orders for machines from some large establishments.

Love Passes Through Fire.

"Do you mean it, father?"

Vivian Mahaffy looked steadily into his father's face as he spoke those words; looked fairly and fully into the face of the keen-eyed old man whose petted idol he had been since the days of his babyhood. Vivian had said that he was about to marry Ethelberta O'Rourke, a girl whom the old man knew only as a fashionable belle and of whose better qualities he had never heard, and in a moment of anger he had told the boy that if his determination was persisted in disinheritance should follow. It was this threat that had caused Vivian to utter the words with which the story begins.

"Yes, I mean it," replied the father. "Marry this girl if you choose, but if you do not a penny of mine shall you have"—and leaving these bitterly cruel words floating around the room he stalked savagely from the apartment.

Two hours have passed. So have seven or eight horse cars, but the one which Vivian is waiting for finly comes along, and soon lands him at the door of Pericles O'Rourke's house. Ethelberta is sitting in her boudoir sewing some foamy lace into the neck of a velvet dress as the young man entered.

"I have bad news for you, my darling," Vivian says, in sad tones, while a don't bluff or you-will-be-called look comes over his face. Bertie nestled her little dimpled hands confidingly in his. "My father and I have quarreled and he has disinherited me. I have"—and here his voice quivered slightly—"been given the g. b. on your account. I am a beggar, Bertie."

Her soft, dusky eyes grew wider and more serious.

'Yes,' continued the sucker, 'I am poor; but I wouldn't care if it wasn't for you, darling. It means that I must give you up, for I cannot ask you to share life with me on a thousand a year.'

She looked at him with a rich crimson flush surging into her cheeks. 'Vivian,' she said, passionately 'do you think I will let you give me up? I love you too well for that. A beggar or prince, you are the same to me—my king, my lover.' And he folded her to his heart with a great, almost speechless, tenderness and joy.

'My darling, my precious,' he whispered.

Three months later, on a golden December afternoon, with a blue sky as in June, there was a grand wedding at the O'Rourke mansion. As Vivian and Ethelberta were entering the carriage that was to bear them to the depot she looked at him with a weirdly precious smile.

'And so you did not desert me, my darling,' he said, 'even when you tho't that I was poor?'

'No, my precious one,' was the reply. 'I learned long ago that a sucker, once off the hook, will never bite again; and your father and I put up the job so as to land you a little quicker.'—Chicago Tribune.

A Garfield Clock.

Mr. S. Holter, a jeweler and watch maker of Middlebury, Vt., has recently constructed a curious clock, which acts out the assassination of President Garfield. The machine is a common cuckoo clock, under which is a miniature depot. At one window is a ticket agent dealing out tickets, while at another a telegraph operator is seen busy at his work, and truckmen, porters, train dispatchers, etc., are all flying around as natural as life. All of these figures are of wood, about two inches long. At the end of each hour the cuckoo announces the fact, and immediately a figure of President Garfield appears on the platform on which the scene is enacted, accompanied by Mr. Blaine. Guiteau is seen to follow him, having just alighted from a truck wagon, and as he fires at the President the latter falls. Just then a train of cars comes dashing in, and in the confusion all the principal actors are carried into the depot out of sight. After the train dispatcher has given the signal and the train has gone, a small door at the left opens and a priest appears, book in hand, in the act of reading a funeral service, while at the same time another door at the right opens and Guiteau appears on the gallows. The priest retires, and shortly after the gallows disappears with Guiteau, and the doors close. This is acted out at the end of each hour, and takes about three minutes. Mr. Holton is quite a noted inventor, but this seems to be his masterpiece. Boston Journal.

A Mistake.

Two Fon du Lac citizens made a terrible mistake the other day. One was a doctor and the other was a hunter. The doctor took the hunter out to a marsh, and left him to shoot, while he went to visit a patient. The hunter took the doctor's medicine case, and the doctor went off with the hunter's case of cartidges. The hunter brought home some chickens killed with blue pills, and a post mortem examination of the doctor's patient revealed a lot of number eight shot, though the coroner's jury could not find any shot holes, and they returned a verdict, 'Died from gun shot, with no wounds.'

Anecdotes of Longfellow.

His sense of humor found especial pleasure in the inappropriate words that were sometimes said to him by persons whose design it was to be complimentary, and he would relate, with a keen relish of their pleasantry, anecdotes against himself, to illustrate this form of social blunder. Years ago he told me, at Cambridge, about the strange gentleman who was led up to him and introduced at Newport, and who straightway said, with enthusiastic fervor: "Mr. Longfellow, I have long desired the honor of knowing you! Sir, I am one of the few men who have read your Evangeline." This anecdote, in recent days, he coupled with another about an English lady who, on being introduced, exclaimed: 'Why, Mr. Longfellow, I thought you were dead!' 'No, madam, you see I take the liberty of living.' 'Yes—but I thought at least you belonged to Washington's time.' Another of his favorites was related to me a day or two after it occured. The poet's rule was to reserve the morning for work, and visitors were not received before 12 o'clock, noon. One morning a man forced his way past the servant who had opened the hall-door, and burst in upon the presence of the astonished author in his library; and thereupon ensued this remarkable conversation: 'Mr. Longfellow, you're a poet, I believe.' 'Well, sir, some persons have said so.' 'All right, Mr. Longfellow! Poet it is! Now, I've called here to see if I couldn't get you to write some poetry for me to have printed and stuck onto my medicine bottles. You see, I go round sellin' this medicine, and if you'll do it it'll help immensely; and I'll just tell you right now, if you give me the poetry, I'll give you a bottle of the carminative—and it's $1 a bottle.' For the full enjoyment of this story it was needful to see the poet's face, and hear the delicious, bland tone in which he added: 'The idea of its being a carminative, of all things.'

No Kings Need Apply.

A correspondent of the London Daily News, writing from Paris, says: Mrs. Mackey has expressed to a Boulevard journalist her indignation at the report that her daughter is engaged to Prince Phillippe de Bourbon. She is very angry with the prince for having left to her the task of contradicting the report, which she asserts was maliciously promulgated by a lady on the Figaro staff, because she asked to be invited to Mrs. Mackey's ball and was refused. When Queen Isabella called on Mrs. Mackey to felicitate her on the alleged engagement of her daughter, the latter said: "You know, madame, my opinion about titled suitors. Were a king to propose for my child he should not obtain her." The aggrieved mother insinuates that Prince Phillippe allowed, to render his creditors more patient, the absurd story to circulate. She expressed utter contempt for fortune-hunting bachelors, a race that are not tolerated in America.

The recital of her tribulations is amusing in its frankness. As a mother of a supposed heiress, she is not allowed a moment's peace. The chase after her daughter is intensely keen. Every day since she left school Mrs. Mackey receives piles of letters from matrimonial negotiators unknown to her, who demand interviews, the object of which is to insure her child's happiness. Innumerable calls are made by men of business who would be glad to be match makers; secretaries of titled personages, priests, dowagers of quality, distinguished foreigners from all parts of the globe, who have proposals of marriage to enunciate. Threatening letters also pour in. The concierge, governess and abigails are beset with sharks wanting information about Mademoiselle's habits, tastes, favorite theatres, and hours for walking in the Bois. To escape from persecution, Mrs. Mackey thinks of giving notice on a bill posted on her gate that, according to American habits, Mademoiselle will not give any dowry, and will not have any fortune while her mother and step-father live.

A Glimpse of the Splendid Past.

Five hundred years before the birth of Christ there was a city in Italy called Sybaris. It was a magnificent place, and the wealth and luxury of its inhabitants was so great that the name Sybaris exists to this day as a pseudonym of a devotee of pleasure. It was at one time so populous, that it could send 300,000 men into the field, yet its annals are lost and its great men unknown. All the information we learn is the fact of its greatness, and that its ruins are to-day under the bed of a river in southern Italy. It seems that there was a quarrel amongst the rulers of this mighty city, and the discontented joined with their enemies, the Crotoniates, who succeeded in capturing Sybaris, drove out its inhabitants, and, to make its ruin complete, changed the course of a river so that it swept over the remains of the once mighty municipality. To-day the ruins are covered by a bed of slime and earth from sixteen to twenty feet deep, and soon the work of bringing the remains to light will be undertaken. It is believed that the memorials of a very distant past will be brought to light equal to if not exceeding in interest those of Pompeii.

Circus incident: A young man who went to the circus and stepped too near a monkey's cage had his arm seized and savagely jerked by one of the monkeys. He would have escaped safely if he had not said, 'It is merely a monkey-wrench,' but when they heard that the infuriated crowd threw him into the lions' den.—Anon.

The Ancient World.

In a recent lecture on the world at the time of man's appearance, Boyd Dawkins, the English geologist, gave a brief sketch of some of the changes which have preceded the present condition of the earth's surface. In the eocene and miocene periods, he said, Europe was united with Iceland and Greenland, and also with the United states of America by a barrier of land, extending past the Faroe Isles, which was covered by dense forest, composed to a large extent of the same trees, in Europe and in America, and which allowed of a comparatively free migration of animals to and fro between England and the United states. In the rivers of Europe were alligators and fish not to be distinguished from those of America. In the pliocene age the barrier of land became depressed, and for the first time in the history of the world what is now the Atlantic became connected with the Artic sea. During all these changes the British Isles formed part of the continent, and the Atlantic seaboard was marked by the five hundred fathom line. As regards the changes in climate in Europe in the three periods, the lecturer said that during the first period the climate was tropical in Britain, palms and bread-fruits and other southern trees living in the southeast of England. In the second period the climate was cooler and palms were scarce, but magnolia and tulip trees and sevuoias abounded. In the third period the climate became temperate. These surroundings of man were gradually shaped in the three earlier stage of the territory period until they arrived very early at that equilibrium which is found to day.

S. M. S., Fayetteville, Texas; 'Can you give me the name of any one living in or near Austin who makes a specialty of raising chickens?' 'No, we can't mention any one that might be said to make a specialty of raising chickens. Most of them raise whatever kind of poultry they find. They will take a goose as fast as a spring rooster. The only one in that line that has done any business with us raised a turkey, and two pairs of drawers and an undershirt on our premises one night last week. He could hardly be said to make a specialty of chickens.

Two of the most fashionable ladies in Austin were conversing about Easter bonnets and other topics a few days ago, when one of them said there was a very dangerous dog in the neighborhood. 'Has he bitten anybody?' asked one of the ladies. 'Yesterday he caught a little pig by the ear, and bit it up terribly.' 'Is that so? If he is that kind of a dog, I'm not going to let my children play in that neighborhood.' 'Nor I mine, either.'

The Burlington Hawkeye says that in its county jail many birds of a feather may now be seen luxuriating on good lodgings and good board. One of the prisoners, a young man, tall, lusty and active-looking, but with a countenance hard in the extreme, said he had as good a thing as he wanted—three good meals a day and plenty of rest. Can we wonder that so many Chicago editors go to Iowa for change of air.

High Art: Artist: 'There is the barn, with the pigeon on it. The barn, you see, is supposed to be half a mile away.' Visitor: 'But there are the pigeon's feet. You can see them distinctly.' Artist: 'Of course. I made them plain on purpose.' Visitor: 'What! Do you mean to say that there's a man living who can see a pigeon's feet half a mile away?' Artist: 'Oh, sure enough. Don't mention this. I can fix them feet.'

A distinction with a difference: 'It is not necessary for a man to be poor to be honest.' Certainly not. But it seems sort o' half way necessary for a man to be poor if he is honest. A distinction with quite a difference it will be seen.

The Chinese question: The general sentiment about Arthur in this section is that we'd like to toe him without the V.—San Francisco Post.

Pathetic: The most poetical thing in real life that we ever gazed upon was a veteran of the late war weeping over the grave of a sutler to whom he owed $150.

DOWNS' ELIXIR.

N. H. DOWNS'

Vegetable Balsamic

ELIXIR

This valuable medicine is purely vegetable: the discovery of which was the result of many years' close study, in order to discover the cause, the symptoms, and the cure—viz:

Consumption, Coughs, Colds, Catarrh, Croup, Asthma, Pleurisy, Hoarseness, Influenza, Spitting Blood, Bronchitis, and every species of oppression of the Chest and Lungs. In all cases where this Elixir has been duly administered its efficacy has been invariably manifested, convincing the most incredulous that is not incurable, if properly attended to.—Consumption, at its commencement, is but a slight irritation of the membrane which covers the Lungs; then an inflamation, when the cough is more observable, but rather dry; then becomes local fever and the pulse more frequent, the cheeks flushed and chills more common. This Elixir in curing the above complaints, operates so as to remove all morbid irritations and inflamation from the lungs to the surface, and finally expel them from the system. It facilitates expectoration.

It heals the ulcerated surfaces and relieves the cough and makes the breathing easy. It supports the strength and at the same time reduces the fever. It is free from strong opiate and astringent articles, which are of so drying a nature as to be in great danger of destroying the patient; whereas this medicine never dries or stops the cough, but, by removing the CAUSE, generally destroys the hectic before the cough is entirely gone. Consequently, when the cough is cured the patient is well. Send address for pamphlet giving full directions for cure of pulmonary diseases.

Roughs on the Rampage.

GREENFIELD, Mass., April 22.—Over a dozen roughs belonging to a gang of bridge builders at work on the new Connecticut river railroad bridge at Cheapside ran a muck through the town last night, assaulting citizens, breaking into stores and otherwise outrageously disturbing the peace. John Flynn, a fireman on the Fitchburg railroad, was stabbed in the arm by one of them and lost so much blood by the severing of an artery that he is not expected to live. Up to 10 o'clock this morning six of the ruffians had been arrested. A seventh was caught this afternoon and was followed to the lockup by an excited crowd of several hundred citizens. There is no night police force at present but this affair has so aroused the community that measures will immediately be taken to preserve the peace in the future.

The Garfield Funeral Flowers.

CHICAGO, April 22.—The magnificent floral tributes presented by Queen Victoria and the emperor of Brazil, upon the occasion of President Garfield's funeral, were brought here from Cleveland to be embalmed, the lady who secured the work being allowed in return the privilege of exhibiting them and selling photographs of them. The Garfield monument committee cut short the time of exhibition, compelling the lady to borrow money to complete the work. One of the ladies, getting tired of waiting for payment, got out a writ of replevin, and the flowers were stowed away in the duty-rooms of a police justice, where they now are. Some eminent legal talent has been secured on each side, and the case comes up a week from to-day.

Hon. Proctor Knott,

YORK, Pa., April 22.—Hon. Proctor Knott was greeted at the opera house last night by a large and intelligent audience of ladies and gentlemen, among those present being Judges Black, Fisher, Wickes and Gibson, the prominent manufacturing and business men of the town, and the entire membership of the Jeffersonian association. The speaker, who was introduced by Chauncey F. Black, spoke on "The Gospel of Our Liberties," and discussed the principals of Jefferson, contrasting them with the present management of government affairs.

South Bethlehem's Plague.

SOUTH BETHLEHEM, Pa., April 21.—There were no new cases or deaths from small pox here to day. In Bethlehem, however, two new cases were reported.

Murdered his Mother-in-Law.

BOSTON, Mass., April 20.—A shocking murder was committed at West Somerville to-day, the victim being Mrs. Mary Russell, aged 97 years, who was killed by her son-in-law, Edwin R. Prescott, aged 66 years. Mrs. Russell's daughter, who is Prescott's second wife, went to Boston this forenoon and on her return was met at the door of her house by her husband who told her he had just killed her mother. The horrified woman ran to the police station and brought officers to the scene, who, upon searching the premises, found lying in a back shed the body of Mrs. Russell with her skull fractured; her face staved in and her throat cut from ear to ear. The murderer was secured and taken to jail. The tragedy created intense excitement as the parties to it are well known and moved in the highest society circles.

Prescott, who had amassed a fortune in dry goods and retired from active business, had recently lost considerable money, causing him considerable worriment which he complained was aggravated by his mother-in-law. This morning he complained about his breakfast being cold and she answered him tauntingly. He pushed her as she was descending the steps and knocked her down. In the struggle she got him under and aimed severe blows at him with a household article in her hand. This angered him and turning her under him he reached and got a brick which was lying near by, and holding her down by his weight battered her face with the brick until she lost consciousness. Then, not wanting her to suffer any pain from her injuries, he got a common coal shovel and pounded her on the top of her skull to fracture it. Then to be sure she was dead he slashed her throat several times with a sharp case knife. His mother-in-law's interference in his family affairs and her offensive treatment reduced him to a state of melancholia and about a week ago his wife had arrangements made for his consignment to an asylum, but the evidence of insanity was considered insufficient by the physicians and the papers were not signed. Mrs. Russell was possessed of a large estate, of which her daughter is to be heir. Prescott, while telling his story, showed no signs of insanity and but little more excitement than was natural to a person of his age and physical weakness.

Destructive Storm.

PITTSBURG, April 20.—A Scottdale, Westmoreland county, Pa., special says: A storm struck Mt. Vernon, an ore mining town in the mountains, five miles from here, last evening, uprooting trees, demolishing fences, and blowing down houses and barns. Among the houses demolished are the following: William Wingrove's, killing his wife and injuring seven children; Jacob Stouffer's, seriously injuring one child; Joseph Glassburner's whole family injured, and the roof blown two miles; Jacob Miller's, none injured. At Pennsville the roof of Abraham Shoerwick's barn was carried a quarter of a mile and a dwelling was blown down. Many telegraph poles and acres of timber are leveled. Pennsville is five miles from Mt. Vernon, and damage was done all the way.

Haverly's Death Discredited.

CHICAGO, Ill., April 20.—The Haverly people here give no credence to the rumor from London that Haverly is dead. J. H. McConnell, manager of Haverly's business, received a cablegram from him on Friday. He was then perfectly well. Haverly's sister, who lives here, was at the theatre this morning and had no intimation of her brother's illness even and did not credit the rumor.

NEW YORK, April 20.—Haverly's business manager says: The rumor of Mr. Haverly's death is news to him. Up to 2 p. m. he had not received notification of such an event, and had it occurred he would certainly have been cabled at once.

Plundering the Jews.

VIENNA, April 20.—The Allegemein Zeitung publishes an account received from the frontier which says that the troops, previous to the arrival of the governor of Podolia at Balta, aided in plundering instead of protecting the Jews there. Forty persons were seriously injured during the progress of the riots, some of whom have since died. Fully one thousand houses were destroyed and the damage done is estimated at 4,500,000 roubles.

Across the Sea.

Mr. Parnell will be absent another week from Kilmainham on account of urgent family affairs.

The council of the empire has been instructed to draw up a law defining the position of Jews in Russia.

M. de Lesseps' scheme for flooding the desert of Sahara has been approved by the French cabinet council.

It is said that the French regard the occupation of certain points on the frontier of Tripoli as indispensable.

The Mansion House Jewish relief committee is anxious to work in perfect accord with the American committee.

A dispatch from St. Petersburg states that General Ignatieff has dismissed his secretory, M. Pubnickoff, for writing an anti-German pamphlet

Death on the Rail.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., April 21.—John Florey, of this place, a laborer, was run over and killed by an express train at Trout Run while walking on the track. He was deaf.

Hangman's Hemp.

NEW YORK, April 21.—William Sindram was hanged this morning in the yard of the city prison for the murder of his landlady, Mrs. Mary Crane, in January, 1881. The criminal met his fate with fortitude and never showed any signs of fear from the time the hangman called upon him until the black cap was drawn over his eyes. The halter was fastened to clip hooks overhead, and himself swung into eternity. At 8:33 the procession merged rom the prison, led by Sheriff Bowe and Under Sheriff Stevens. After them walked Dr. Morgan praying aloud, and immediately behind him came the prisoner walking firmly, having on either side a deputy sheriff. Sindram was calm and nodded to those he knew as he passed on his way to the gallows. The hangman's assistant was nervous, and forgot to lower the cap, until reminded. Sindram's face twitched, and jerked, but he merely said, 'Hurry up.' Pulling the cap down with a jerk, the assistant stepped in front of the deep hole, and when Sheriff Stevens gave the signal it could not be seen by the hangman, and it was many seconds before the difficulty was discovered and the signal again given, when the body shot up in the air five feet and settled back six inches, the arms and legs twitching convulsively. In three minutes the body was lowered within nine inches of the ground, and six minutes after the pulse ceased to beat, and the heart stopped its action in fifteen minutes after the drop fell. He was not lowered until ten minutes afterwards, when it was discovered death was caused by strangulation.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., April 21.—Luther B. Taylor was hanged at 10 o'clock to-day at Corning, Ark., for the murder of Riley Black.

ROLLA, Mo., April 21.—George Bohannan was executed here to-day in the presence of several thousand people, who came to town from all the surrounding country. The saloons and public schools were closed by proclamation of the mayor.

Train Robbers Foiled.

ST. LOUIS, April 21.—A dispatch from Kansas City says: A passenger from the west reports that the eastbound passenger train on the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe road was ditched last Sunday night near Rincon, N. M., and that five heavily-armed men attempted to rob the express but got into the baggage instead of the express car, and before they could rectify their mistake and get into the right car, the train men and passengers appeared in such numbers that the robbers fled.

The engine and baggage and express cars were thrown from the track, the firemen was killed and the engineer and Well, Fargo & Co.'s messenger were badly injured. The express is supposed to have had two hundred thousand dollars in silver from the Arizona mines bound for New York, and it is thought the would-be robbers were informed of the fact by telegraph at Rincon and that they belonged to a band of desperadoes who have been committing all kinds of depredations in New Mexico and Arizona for months past.

The Troubles in Ireland.

LONDON, April 21.—The police patrol surprised a large body of moonlighters at Bally Bunnian, near the house of a farmer who had recently been shot. The police fired at the party and it is stated several of them were wounded.

DUBLIN, April 21.—Annie Kirke, a member of the ladies land league of this city, has been arrested at Tulla. Sixty families have been evicted on the estate of the Marquis of Sligo.

LONDON, April 21.—Extra precautions have been taken at the Woolwich Barracks in consequence of the receipt of a letter disclosing an intention to blow up the barracks.

Sunday Beer.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, April 21.—The saloon keepers held a mass meeting this afternoon and adopted the report of the executive committee which recommends that on Sunday next the saloons keep closed but do not lock their doors, and that they sell to any one who may come to buy. It further recommends that the funds of the association be available to bail out any saloon keeper who may be arrested. The mayor has issued his proclamation giving notice of the law and that it will be enforced, and the superintendent of the police has issued another to the police defining their duties.

More Crookedness Discovered.

HARRISBURG, April 21.—It was discovered to-day that Jacob A. Faune, who was found some time ago to be a defaulter to the county in taxes to the amount of about five thousand dollars, is also short in his collection of school taxes for the past two years to the extent of fifteen hundred dollars. His bondsmen have been proceeded against. Several other collectors, now out of office, are back in their county accounts and action is to be taken against their sureties.

Application Refused.

COLUMBUS, Ohio., April 21.—Application having been made for a certificate of incorporation for the purpose of protecting the liquor dealers from oppressive and unconstitutional legislation, the attorney general rendered an opinion this evening that the certificate could not be filed under the laws of Ohio and that the courts being the place to test the laws, any organization for that purpose would be illegal.

A Hurricane of Flame.

ST. PAUL, Minn., April 22.—A special from Lake City, Minn., says: At about 2 o'clock this morning a fire broke out in what is known as the Rope Neal hotel, on the point, and soon it was certain that the business portion of the town was doomed. The wind was blowing strongly from the east across the lake, and the draft created by the fire soon produced a perfect hurricane of flame, before which two-thirds of the business portion of the town succumbed. The flames destroyed five solid squares of business buildings, leaving only three rows of buildings standing in the business portion of the town. The loss is roughly put at $400,000; insurance at $150,000. The fire started at a little before 2 o'clock, and in less than an hour the worst had been done. The flames leaped from building to building and across streets and over open lots. The fire department worked nobly, but no human power could arrest the progress of the fire. The Red Wing fire apparatus came down on a special train, but arrived too late to be of much practical benefit. C. E. Finch's store was saved, but above that on both sides of Washington street end, one block on the west side of the street up to and including the Lake City bank, everything was cleared, also everything on Center street and Main street and Young's block, in which was the Masonic hall, the Commercial hotel and the Hersey building, was swept away. The fire was stayed by an open space between Main and High streets thus saving everything in that direction to the depot, a perfect swath of which much otherwise have gone.

Destructive Tornado.

CHICAGO, Ill., April 22.—A fearful tornado passed over this city about 5 o'clock this afternoon from a westerly direction. Although of but a few seconds' duration, it blew down the colored Methodist church and four other buildings, unroofed ten or fifteen buildings, and blew over five loaded freight cars on the Wabash railroad. It also did considerable damage to the city gas works by overturning the gasometer, and completely destroyed telegraph and telephone communication. No lives were lost, but two or three persons were slightly hurt. The tornado was accompanied by a heavy hail storm, which did considerable damage to windows and sky-lights.

Fire and Loss of Life.

NEWARK, N J., April 22.—A fire broke out at 4.30 o'clock this morning in the boarding house No. 249 Market street, occupied by Paul Brenoff, and damaged the building to the extent of $800. Several of the boarders in the third story escaped by the windows and lowered themselves to the street. After the fire was extinguished the body of August Enhault was found in one of the upper rooms burned to a crisp. It is thought that he went to bed at 4 o'clock this morning with a cigar in his mouth and this set fire to the bed. His body was sent to the morgue.

Valuable Horses Burned.

NEW YORK, April 23.—A fire breaking out this afternoon in the Mansion house stables, Brooklyn, caused the loss of twenty six valuable horses and the death of a coachman, Stephen Currey, whose charred remains were found alongside of his employer's animal which he evidently was endeavoring to rescue. The total loss is estimated at $35,000, mostly covered by insurance, but in what companies could not be ascertained. The origin of the fire is not known.

A Terrible Fall.

PHŒNIXVILLE, Pa., April 23.—During the performance of Batcheller & Doris' circus here last evening Mlle. Le Fevre, gymnast, while performing on the flying rings, fell a distance of forty feet, striking heavily on the outside of the ring. The accident was occasioned by the giving way of the crane which upheld the ring. The lady had almost completed her act when the rings gave way. She was carried into the dressing room, where a doctor, who was in the audience, reported the injuries serious, but not necessarily fatal.

Chief Justice Marshall.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—The joint committee on library to-day decided to accept the fund offered by the Philadelphia bar to be added to the appropriation made by congress for the erection of a statue to Chief Justice Marshall in this city. The subscription was started by the bar association of Philadelphia forty years ago and now aggregates $20,000.

After a Pardon.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—R. C. Wilson, a prominent citizen of Cleveland, Ohio, arrived here to-day, bearing the signatures of sixty thousand citizens of Cleveland and vicinity, praying for the pardon of Sargeant Mason. The petition was handed to President Arthur this afternoon.

South Bethlehem's Plague.

SOUTH BETHLEHEM, Pa., April 20.—Since yesterday two new cases of small-pox and three deaths have been reported. Two persons have been declared convalescent. There have been thus far three hundred and seventeen cases and ninety-nine deaths from the disease.

Severely Hurt.

WHEELING, W. Va., April 20.—Geo. Rue, an engineer, was badly hurt in a railroad collision here to-day.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL NEWS

—You should allow no earthly obstacle prevent you buying a few cigars of Harry Green.

—His countenance is wreathed in a smile of æsthetic satisfaction, all because he bought his cigars of Harry Green.

—Frame this truthful saying and hang it in your best room: "Sechler's groceries are the best in the market."

—Truth is mighty and must prevail, therefore the fact that the store of Sechler & Co. is the place to buy groceries must soon become an established belief in the hearts of the people.

Ho! for Harrisburg.

We are informed that arrangements have been made with parties in Philadelphia for two passenger coaches to leave this place on Tuesday morning, the 9th of May, to convey all who desire to attend the Republican State Convention at Harrisburg on the following day, Wednesday, May 10. The excursion rates will be only $5. All the members of the county committee have been invited to go, and have, without exception, signified their intention of doing so, many of them desiring to take friends along. Others who desire to accompany the excursion can, upon application, procure an order from the Chairman of the Republican County Committee. There is little doubt that even two cars will not be sufficient to accommodate the vast throng who will want to attend.

—A display of elegant dry goods, the equal of which has seldom, if ever, been witnessed in this community, is now on exhibition at the "Bee Hive" store. It should at once awaken the interest and curiosity of all the ladies in this place. Such beautiful dress goods, lovely trimmings, fine linens and muslins, parasols, and everything belonging to a lady's complete outfit have perhaps never even been thought of before. It is next to impossible for a lady to be tastefully and elegantly attired without first consulting the "powers that be" at the "Bee Hive." A full force of polite lady and gentlemen clerks are constantly there to show goods. The proprietors are expert dry goods merchants and have thoroughly studied the wants and tastes of the people of this community in the purchase of their stock. The wants of the gentlemen are met in the merchant tailoring department in another room. Here also the beauty and quality of the goods displayed are quite marvelous. Go early. Prices are very reasonable.

—The Spring announcement of the old and reliable store of Valentines & Co. may be found in another column. The establishment is prospering under its new management and in the advertisement referred to may be found many strong inducements to attract the patronage of customers. Give Valentines & Co. a call in making your spring purchases.

—A very interesting case of a scandalous nature in which wealthy Huntingdon parties are concerned will come before the Centre county courts next week. The crime which gave rise to it occurred in Philipsburg, and consequently the venue was laid in this county. Hon. Bruce Petriken and other prominent legal lights of Huntingdon, together with some of the brilliant attorneys of this place, are engaged as counsel. The details of the case are not fit to appear in public prints. The Hamiltons and the Mitzlers are the names of the parties at war with each other. It is only the wealth and position of the conflicting parties which brings the disgraceful case into court. We hope that Judge Orvis, with his accustomed severity, will sit down on it so heavily as to squash the daylight out of it, and not let it occupy the time of court.

—Judge Elwell has decided that the constitutional "two months" residence in a district to qualify a voter is from a given day in one month to the day with a corresponding number in the second ensuing month. That is to say, that from December 16 to February 15, though more than sixty days is not legally two months. It is the opinion of the same learned Court that when a ticket does not contain the whole name extrinsic evidence may be resorted to for the purpose of showing directly the intention of the voter or of raising a reasonable presumption in favor of the candidate whose name is incorrectly or only in part contained in the ballot.

—Mr. Beecher says Oscar Wilde is of a good deal more use in the world than most of the people who are laughing at him. Oscar will please bear in mind that we have always spoken of him in terms of the highest praise, and even now wear his picture in our diamond locket.

Curious Cyclones.

When the wind begins to blow there is about it a sound almost as terrible as the roar of a lion. After perusing descriptions of great wind storms, called cyclones, which occur even amid the mountain fastnesses of our own Keystone State, it would not be at all wonderful if we were to fancy we hear the knell of death in the first sensations of every rising zephyr. Think of a boy elevated from the back of a horse by the wind and hurled headlong a distance of fifty yards into a neighboring field! The first impulse of that boy would not be to rise and dance a hornpipe. But we can all agree with one unanimous shout, as solid and unwavering as the Solid South in its most solidified period, that one of the most fortunate occurrences in mortal existence is that the residents of Centre county reside in such close proximity to a grocery store like that of Sechler & Co. What are the most important attractions of Sechler's famous grocery? Why, within those two large apartments can be found the sweetest sugars, the most aromatic coffees and teas, the most powerful spices, the most delicately flavored extracts, the creamiest cheese, the soundest and most perfect canned fruits, baking powder that will make the doughy compound rise up to the skies, the most toothsome syrups and molasses, the juciest meats—in short, the best of everything. Let the contemplation of these solemn truths dispel all disturbing thoughts about cyclones, and rest assured in the consoling reflection that Sechler is the King Grocer of this "neck o' the woods."

Excitement in Bellefonte.

The excitement in Bellefonte since the opening of the Great Boston Clothing House in that town is fearful. People from every part and direction are now rushing into Bellefonte to supply themselves with clothing, boots and ladies' shoes. Never since the existence of Centre county have clothing, boots and shoes been bought so extremely cheap as it is offered at that concern. The stock is the largest and most elegant ever seen in this section, made up exclusively at their warehouse in Boston for this market, and which for quality, durability and style, surpasses any custom made clothing made up by country tailors. Most every body can be suited and fitted, from a child of three years to the largest sized man, and no customer need leave the Boston Clothing, Boot and Shoe House without buying, unless he is hoggish. Remember the place, Reynolds' block, opposite Brockerhoff House, Bellefonte, Pa. 17-2t

Fashion Notes.

Our fashion editor, who has just returned from a "swing around the circle," stands up and remarks:

The average bonnet will continue to be worn on the back of the neck instead of on the head.

A stocking stuffed with old iron makes a good morning (w)rapper—to rap up the hired girl, and save the knuckles.

Truly fashionable ladies sit down on Oscar Wilde's ideas of style, and would sit down on Oscar should the opportunity present itself.

There is no particular style in vogue in the matter of ties and neck wear. Any thing from a yard of red tape to a mildewed napkin will be in style.

Ladies who dress on credit will stand just as high in the community as those who drive to their dressmaker's in a barouche and pay cash.

It is not considered good taste for gentlemen with dark-haired wives to return home at midnight with the inside of their coat sleeves trimmed with blonde hair.

A striking improvement is noticable in gent's overalls. The new patterns are leather-seated, stitched with clothes line and warranted not to rip at the "junction."

Ladies' gloves continue to grow in length. New styles reach to the shoulder and button around the neck. Sensitive ladies with thin arms climb the difficulty by stuffing their gloves with scented saw-dust.

By economizing in trimming ladies who are hard-pushed for wealth can supply themselves with an evening reception costume for about $190 The same, full rigged, about the price of a brown stone front. The latter will not be worn to any extent in Bellefonte, except by the wives of printers.

A new and very useful article for gentlemen's wear is a glazed shirt front, on which the drizzle from a beer mug will have no effect. The introduction of something of this sort has been made necessary from the fact that beer-stained shirt bosoms are no longer admitted into good society.

What We'd Like to See.

The Bellefonte hotels crowded with boarders this summer.

A handsome liberty poll erected in the Diamond.

The man who isn't thoroughly disgusted with this sort of weather.

Sergeant Mason restored to freedom and his family.

Halfmoon hill planted with shade trees and made into a public park.

A new depot—but, pshaw! what's the use of wasting words on such a vain wish.

A substantial business block built on the corner of High and Water streets.

John Anderson and Jesse Klinger contest for honors in a foot race.

The girl who wouldn't jerk out her eyebrows if it was the fashion to wear none.

A few days more of decent weather before winter sets in.

A hundred new buildings built in Bellefonte this summer.

Vulgar flirtations with strangers entirely renounced by Bellefonte girls.

A little more sense displayed by some subscribers when a paper happens to publish an article now and then that they do not like.

The bridge widened over the race so as to make it more convenient for pedestrians.

The Bellefonte telephone exchange connected with a line running to State College.

A railroad from Bellefonte to Lemont.

Ten thousand new subscribers for the Centre county daily paper.

One hundred new cars daily turned out from the Bellefonte car works.

The capital of the Bellefonte Glass Company increased to fifty thousand.

Some one furnish the nail works at this place with all the scrap iron they want.

The Centre County Agricultural Society free from debt.

A twenty-thousand-dollar Baptist church on the corner of Linn and Allegheny streets.

The toll-gate nuisance abolished in this county.

A good many other things we probably shall not see.

Away from Home.

Many persons from Centre county move to the West. The inducements which draw them in that direction are the broad acres of easily cultivated ground, or perhaps the alluring rumors of golden treasure hidden in the bosom of Mother Earth. The mania for western homes does not prevail to so great an extent as it did a few years ago, and some of those who went West are returning—a few with their highest hopes realized, but the larger number disappointed and impoverished. Centre county has one irresistible attraction, and it is only when temporarily removed from the county that we discover the real worth and necessity of that object. The attraction is the grocery store of Sechler & Co. When housewives are put in such a position in which they cannot procure Sechler's groceries agony is terrible. The best of cooks spoil the broth, the flakey pie crust becomes soggy, rich cakes are as heavy as lead; cooking, so far as they are concerned, becomes a lost art. Yea, even happy households may be destroyed. Then value the high privilege of buying groceries of Sechler. Go to his store when you come to town. Buy all that your purse will permit and trust in a beneficent providence for the rest, but be sure it all comes from the store of Sechler & Co.

—The Howe Sewing Machine Company have opened a pretty office in the rooms lately occupied by Mrs. Nannie Dare, on Allegheny street, opposite the post-office. The sign is a handsome gold leaf sewing machine placed on an elevation, in front of the establishment. Mr. A. C. Moore, the veteran sewing machine man, will assume charge of the office, and under his administration this prominent and popular machine will maintain its proper place as the leading instrument of the kind in use.

—J. I. Krape, of Pine Grove Mills, will sell at auction on Saturday, April 29, commencing at 1 o'clock P. M., a lot of personal property consisting of horses, cows, sheep, hogs, farming tools, grain, etc. A liberal credit will be given. Mr. Krape was lately burned out and thinks he will give up the business of farming.

—Peale & McKee, of this place, have the prettiest and most comfortable law office in the borough, and why shouldn't they? It would be difficult to find two more pleasant or affable gentlemen to occupy it.

EDITOR'S TABLE.

We have just received a copy of the most popular piece of music ever published in this country, called the "Verdict March," composed by Eugene L Blake. It is written in an easy style, so that it can be played on either piano or organ. The title page is very handsome, containing correct portraits of Hon. Geo. B. Corkhill, Hon. J. K. Porter, and Judge W. S. Cox; also a correct picture of the twelve jurymen who convicted the assassin of our late beloved President. This piece of music should be found in every household throughout the entire country. Price, 40 cents per copy, or 3 copies for $1. Postage stamps taken as currency. Address all orders to F. W. Helmick, Music Publisher, 180 Elm Street, Cincinnati, O

H. H. WARNER & Co: Sirs—I have suffered for many years with inflammation of the kidneys and bladder, and have never found anything that would give me relief except your Safe Kidney and Liver Cure.

MRS. MARY STAGER.

It has become a well known fact that Dr. Bosanco's Pile Remedy has cured more obstinate cases of Piles than any other known remedy. Recommended by the clergymen, prescribed by physicians and endorsed by the press and public, is sufficient evidence of its popularity.

When an article possesses such sterling merit for the cure of rheumatism as Dr. Bosanco's Remedy, no person should hesitate giving it a trial who may be so afflicted.

A thorough and safe remedy is DR METTAUR'S HEADACHE AND DYSPEPSIA PILLS. Sold by all Druggists. Price 25 cents.

CATARRH—Relief in five minutes in every case; gratifying, wholesome relief beyond a money value. Cure begins from first application, and is rapid, radical and permanent. Ask for Sanford's Radical Cure. Complete for $1.

Many miserable people drag themselves about with failing strength, feeling that they are sinking into their graves, when Parker's Ginger Tonic would begin, with the first dose, to bring vitality and strength back to them.—Sun.

Henry & Johnson's Arnica Oil Liniment, for external use is equally good.

Tested and Found Worthy.

In order to bring more fully before the notice of the people the value of a true and tried remedy, we hereby give the following reliable testimonial from one of the many who have been cured and whose reputation for veracity cannot be questioned.

WOODBURY, N. J., March 20, '82.

SWEDISH BITTERS CO.—

Gentlemen: I have suffered with dyspepsia and its horrible effects for many years. Have spent hundreds of dollars with physicians and in patent medicines, with no avail. I have been unable to eat meats of any kind, and could not retain water on my stomach, and could not sleep at nights. I was induced to procure and try a bottle of your Swedish Bitters, and can conscientiously say its use was followed by beneficial results. I can now sit down and enjoy a hearty meal of meats and vegetables of any kind, and have gained sixteen pounds in three weeks, and can cordially recommend it to others. Yours respectfully,

AUGUSTUS PREHL,
Proprietor of Woodbury City Coach Line, Prehl's Livery and Accommodation Stables. 15-4t

Ministerial Recommendation.

JARRETTSVILLE, Horford Co., Md.,
Jan. 8, 1879.

H. H. WARNER & Co.: Sirs—Your Safe Kidney and Liver Cure has greatly relieved me, and I suffer but little. I am anxious that others should try it. REV. J. DUEY MOORE.

Had Barbers' Itch for six years. Peruna cured me. John Ryan, 799 Penn Avenue, Pittsburgh, Pa.

NEW BLOOMFIELD, MISS., Jan. 2, '80.

I wish to say to you that I have been suffering for the last five years with a severe itching all over. I have heard of Hop Bitters and have tried it. I have used up four bottles, and it has done me more good than all the doctors and medicines that they could use on or with me. I am old and poor, but feel to bless you for such a relief by your medicine and from torment of the doctors. I have had fifteen doctors at me. One gave me seven ounces of solution of arsenic; another took four quarts of blood from me. All they could tell was that it was skin sickness. Now, after these four bottles of your medicine, my skin is well, clean and smooth as ever.

HENRY KNOCHE.

Hay Fever.

For Hay Fever I recommend Ely's Cream Balm. It entirely relieved me from the first application; have been a sufferer for ten years. Going from home and neglecting to take the remedy, I had an attack; after returning I immediately resorted to it, and found instant relief. I believe, had I begun its use earlier, I should not have been troubled. Have stood heat, dust and draughts as well as during other months. J. COLLYER, Clerk, 118 Broad street, Elizabeth, N. J.

For years I have been afflicted with Hay Fever, from early in August until frost. I was induced to give Ely's Cream Balm a trial. The relief was immediate. I regard myself cured. G. SCHREIBER, Supt. of Cordage Co., Elizabeth, N. J. Sept. 25, 1880.

—Small pox lingers at Altoona.

Nothing so good for Headache and Dyspepsia as DR. METTAUR'S HEADACHE AND DYSPEPSIA PILLS. Price 25 cents. All Druggists sell them.

"When I publicly testified that I had been cured of a terrible skin humor by the Cuticura Remedies, I did so that others might be cured, and do not regret the time given to answering inquiries."—Hon. Wm. Taylor, Boston.

There is more strength restoring power in a bottle of Parker's Ginger Tonic than in a bushel of malt or a gallon of milk. This explains why invalids find it such a wonderful invigorant of mind and body. See other column.

Now is the time to buy in what stock of dress goods, clothing, boots and shoes, etc., you need for this coming year, as Lyon Co. are closing out their stock at cost. The goods must be sold and prices will be slaughtered.

Frank Blair has just opened another fine lot of solid silver ware, from the Gorham Co., which are put up in handsome satin cases. These goods, in connection with his stock of superior silver-plated ware, where the finest display of silver ware ever exhibited in town. As he is the agent for the Gorham Co., he sells at the factory retail prices. d-w-t-f.

A CARD.

To all who are suffering from the errors and indiscretions of youth, nervous weakness, early decay, loss of manhood, &c., I will send a recipe that will cure you, free of charge. This great remedy was discovered by a missionary in South America. Send a self-addressed envelope to the Rev. Joseph Inman, Station D., New York City 14 1 26t

Sensible Advice.

Do not allow skepticism to overrule your better judgment when an article of true merit is placed before you. If you are dyspeptic or your kidneys and liver are affected, delay no longer; procure a bottle of Swedish Bitters, the infallible remedy. It will do more for your case than we can say about it. See advertisement and testimonial in this paper. 15 4t

Cured by the Use of a Single Bottle.

Christian Waserbaugh, Green Camp, Ohio, writes: I have been a terrible sufferer with Piles for five years, and after trying various cures without relief, I was induced by Mr. C. L. Patten, our druggist, to try a bottle of Dr. Bosanko's Pile Remedy, and am happy to say that by the use of one single bottle, I am fully cured, and for the first time in five years, free from that terrible disease, the Piles. For the benefit of suffering humanity, I cheerfully add this, my testimony.

POSITIVELY CURED

BY

Benson's Capcine Porous Plasters.

Reasons Why they are Preferred to All Other Porous Plasters or External Remedies:

FIRST.

Because they possess all the merit of the strengthening porous plaster, and contain in addition thereto the newly discovered powerful and active vegetable combination which acts with increased rubefacient, stimulating, sedative and counter irritant effects.

SECOND.

Because they are a genuine pharmaceutica preparation, and so recognized by the profession

THIRD.

Because they are the only plasters that relieve pain at once.

FOURTH.

Because they will positively cure diseases which other remedies will not even relieve.

FIFTH.

Because over 5,000 physicians and druggists have voluntarily testified that they are superior to all other plasters or medicines for external use.

SIXTH.

Because the manufacturers have received the only medals ever given for porous plasters.

THE LATEST NEWS.

The Brownsville Cyclone.

CHICAGO, April 19.—The latest advices concerning the cyclone which visited Brownsville, Mo., yesterday, say the storm struck the town at 4 p. m. and two minutes afterward a most fearful scene of death and destruction was visible on every side. Large two story brick business houses were lifted from their foundations, and the ruins scattered in chaotic confusion in all directions. Frame dwellings were overturned and crushed into splinters while large trees were uprooted and carried long distances by the force of the storm. Hogs and other animals were picked up into the air and carried various distances, and dropped lifeless along the track of the storm.

The first intimation the people had of the terrible disaster impending was the appearance of a low-hanging bluish funnel-shaped cloud, rising in the southwest which seemed to be whirling and rolling in all directions, assuming every conceivable form and traveling at a most fearful rate of speed directly toward the town. The people became intensely excited, and many sought safety in cellars, but the storm came with such velocity that no time was given the people to seek places of safety.

Just before the funnel struck the town a loud roaring noise was heard, which was followed by several loud electric explosions. At the southwestern limits of the town the funnel seemed to strike the ground and rebound a few feet into the air and kept in close proximity to the earth during its entire passage through the town. Fifteen brick and two frame houses, between fifteen and twenty dwellings, the Missouri Pacific depot and telegraph office were entirely destroyed, and numerous other buildings were badly damaged. Seven of the persons killed were P. Scroggs, a prominent farmer; C. Mayers, a leading dry goods merchant; Arthurs and Williams, two traveling men, residence unknown; S P. Pain, a Baptist minister; James Miller, a well known young man; City Marshal White. Perry and John Wilson, father and son, were fatally injured. The names of the others wounded were not obtainable. All except City Marshal White were killed by the falling buildings. He was on the street, and was the most mutilated and disfigured of any. It is supposed that he was drawn into the funnel among the flying timbers, which occasioned the mutilation.

The ground over which the storm passed was mown smooth, and everything the cyclone came in contact with was charred and blackened and covered with a blush sticky mud. Large deposits of sand and gravel were also noticed scattered all along the path.

Temperance Work.

INDIANA, Pa., April 19.—A county convention of the Constitutional Amendment association was held here to day in the court house. A county organization was effected and strong resolutions adopted, favoring the submission of an amendment prohibiting the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors to a vote of the people, and to support no candidate for the legislature unless pledged to vote for the bill. In the evening Hon. D. Agnew delivered an address before the convention. It was a masterly effort, scathing arraignment of the license system and an unanswerable argument in favor of prohibition. Great credit is due to Miss Lee A. Starr, who has been laboring for some weeks in this county in the interest of the State Constitutional Amendment association. Miss Starr has made many friends here and we trust accomplished much good. Much of the success of the convention is due to her efforts.

Set on Fire by Burglars.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 18.—At Seymour, this state, last night, the furniture warehouse of E. T. Bassett was entered by burglars, who blew open the safe and set fire to the building. The building, together with a store, owned by A. Y. Beach, and the dwelling house of L. A. Camp, was destroyed. Swan & McEwen, who occupied the store, lose $10,000; insurance, $4,700. The loss on the warehouse and stock is $25,000; insurance, $8,400. The loss on the store building is $5,000; insurance, $1,500, and the loss on the dwelling house, $3,000; insurance $1,500.

Indians on the War Path.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., April 19.—A dispatch from Camp Thomas states that the chief of police of San Carlos has been killed by Indians and fears are entertained for the safety of all employes there. Colonel Schofield with two companies of the Sixth cavalry has gone to the rescue. The Locos band is on the war path.

Disheartened.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., April 18.—A special from St. Joseph says the messenger with the governor's pardon for the Ford boys has not yet arrived and they are still in prison. To-day the sheriff of Ray county served warrants on Robert and Charles for complicity in the murder of Wood Hite, one of the James gang, in Ray county. The Ford boys are disconcerted at the turn of affairs.

Shocking Crime.

NEW YORK, April 18.—Last night John Lennon, a tailor, thirty five years old, returned to his rooms No. 406 East Tenth street, after being away from his home since Friday last. After the couple retired to bed Lennon quarreled with his wife, and forced her out of bed. She ran to a corner of the room, and then he said: 'I have often threatened to cut you to pieces, and now I'll begin.' So saying he drew a large pocket knife, and in a few minutes he inflicted eleven wounds on his wife's body. Three stabs were in the left arm, six were in the abdomen, and there were cuts of from 6 to 7 inches on each leg Mrs. Lennon escaped into the hallway, and while endeavoring to raise the neighbors her brutal husband finished his work by cutting her throat on the right side. When the police arrested Lennon he was perfectly sober, and the fatally injured woman was removed to the Bellevue hospital. Lennon, in court to-day, was committed without bail to await the result of her injuries, which will, in all probability, end in death.

The New Chinese Bill.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—The senate committee on foreign relations to-day agreed to recommend the passage of the house bill to restrict Chinese immigration, with a number of amendments, all of them verbal or otherwise unimportant except the following: The committee strike out entirely the fourteenth and fifteenth sections, which respectively provide that hereafter no court shall admit Chinese to citizenship, and define the words 'Chinese laborers,' wherever used in the bill, as meaning both skilled and unskilled laborers and Chinese employed in mining. The section requiring collectors of customs to remove from this country any Chinese who shall hereafter unlawfully enter it, is amended by providing that such removals shall be made by the authority of the president, under regulations to be prescribed by him, but only after a judicial examination of each case by a United States judge or United States commissioner.

A Detective in Tramp's Clothes.

MIFFLIN, Pa., April 18.—Several months ago George Wagner, a farmer living at this place, had his barn destroyed by fire, which was of incendiary origin. A few weeks later he received several threatening letters, warning him if he did not move away his house would also be fired. Wagner then engaged a detective, who came here several days ago disguised as a peddler, and to day he arrested Ellis Klinger, a young married man of this place, the proprietor of a grist mill, charged with setting fire to the barn. Klinger has entered bail for his appearance at court. It is believed several young men living here are implicated and will be arrested.

A Young Girl Dies in the Prisoners' Box.

NEW YORK, April 18.—Jennie O'Brien, aged eighteen, whose parents reside at Saratoga, was arrested last night, charged with burglary from the Sturtevant house. When in the prisoners' box of the Jefferson Market police court, previous to being arraigned before the justice, she seemed very excited, wept copiously, and finally became unconscious, in which condition she died.

Large Fire at Cairo, Illinois.

CAIRO, Ill., April 18.—At three o'clock this morning a fire broke out in Bell & Halliday's box factory, and entirely consumed the building. A three-story boarding house on the opposite side of the street was also burned. Bell & Halliday's loss is reported at $25,000; partially insured. A small boy named Logan Yarbor, who roomed at the boarding house, is reported to have been burned to death.

Blown up by Cartridges.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., April 18.—An explosion occurred early this morning, caused by some malicious persons, who placed four boxes of cartridges under the steam drill and boiler used by Contractor Mahoney on the work of building the West Shore road, near West Park. The machinery was blown in pieces and the shock felt for ten miles around. No one was injured. The loss is about $1,500.

South Carolina's Troubles.

CHARLESTON, S. C., April 19.—In the United States court to-day the grand jury found a true bill against thirty-eight citizens of Barnwell county, charging them with obstructing qualified voters in Barnwell county at the general election in November, 1880.

Judge Ross' Successor.

HARRISBURG, Pa., April 18.—Governor Hoyt has appointed Charles H. Stinson, of Norristown as judge of the Montgomery county district, vice Judge Ross, deceased. Judge Stinson is a republican and was formerly a member of the state senate.

Lindram Again.

NEW YORK, April 18.—Judge Bradley, in the general term of the supreme court, to-day denied the motion, argued before him yesterday for a new trial on behalf of William Lindram, the condemned murderer of Mrs. Catharine Crane, who is to be hung on Friday next.

For 13 years I had Chronic Catarrh. The Catarrh is well. PERUNA. Mrs. Jane Manks, Pittsburg, Pa.

—It doee not follow that those who make frequent use of the telephone should have long ears, just because they can hear such a great distance.

—Spring seems to be coming now in real earnest. Perhaps she has become angry and forbidden Winter to sit in her lap any longer. Hope so.

—Painters are engaged in beautifying the exterior of the building occupied by Bunnel & Aikens as a store room and by Mr. Aikens as a dwelling.

—The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals should have some representatives in Bellefonte. There is imminent need for their kindly offices.

—Since the report was started that the new comet is approaching the earth at the rate of a thousand miles a minute our red-headed citizens don't venture out much after dark.

—Friendly strangers began to call at this office at an early hour Thursday morning. L. E. Blakeslee, of Lamar, Clinton county, accompanied by a friend, was the first visitor. Fifteen years ago Mr. B. was a resident of this county.

—Bellefonte has no High Constable Mr. Henry Gares, not being able to secure a place of residence in the borough, has resigned. This is a very necessary officer, especially at this time of the year. How shall the vacancy be filled?

—The gingerbread compounded by the ladies of the "Holly Tree Inn" is superlatively excellent. A generous portion of it found its way to this office yesterday and one of two members of the editorial staff devoured it in a very short time and then longed for more. Oh my, but it was delicious!

—The regular meeting of the Undine Fire company was held Tuesday evening of lat week, at 7½ o'clock sharp. This was the first meeting after the adoption of the new constitution and by laws. There were thirty members present and the meeting was very interesting as business of importance was transacted.

—The Logan Hose Company of this place have received an invitation from the Friendship Hook and Ladder Company, of Tyrone, to participate in a Fourth of July dinner and supper to be given by the latter company. They will probably accept as they are usually quite willing to go where there is anything to eat.

—If the high constable will take a stroll out Linn street most any forenoon he will find something to do in his line of duty. The owner of the spotted hogs which have done so much damage on the street this spring seems determined to defy the laws and turns them out on the streets every morning regularly. It is high time they were kidnapped and held for ransom.

Woman's Responsibility.

Judge Stone, of Pittsburg, has just rendered an important decision in which he says that while a married woman may hold and trade as a shopkeeper or merchant, with any goods or merchandise that may be her separate estate, selling and replenishing her stock as needful upon credit given her upon her separate property, and be protected from her husband's creditors, she cannot incur any debt for which she will be liable for such stock or renewal or in any ordinary business transaction unless she be a feme sole trader under the acts of 1855 and 1818, and, therefore, if she engages in merchandising, except as suggested, her creditors have no remedy against her and cannot sustain an action against her and her husband with which to charge her estate. Indeed, any other interpretation of the act would not only subvert all our ideas of the relative position of the husband and wife in the marriage relation, but would give the latter, without and even against the consent of her husband, the right to jeopordize not only her property by involving it in the hazards of business but actually compel him to stand as her surety in any enterprise she might see fit to encourage.

A Remarkable Escape.

A little son of Mr. A. H. Rice, eight years of age, narrowly escaped death by drowning Wednesday while the severe wind and rain storm was in progress. He had been sent to town and was returning home via. the railroad. When he reached the trestle near Reynolds' Mill the wind blew with terrific violence. The little fellow carried an open umbrella, and the wind catching this raised him clear off the trestle and dropped him into the water below, which at that point is swift and deep. Fortunately, however, he had sufficient presence of mind to grasp a board which was nailed on to the trestle and hung within about a foot of the water. With the aid of this he succeeded in climbing to a place of safety. It was a most fortunate escape.

Fish and Game Law.

It is illegal to catch and retain trout under five inches in length, and it is illegal to catch fish in any other way than with rod, hook and line. Penalty for each fish illegally caught or returned $10, or offered for sale $25. Bass and pike fishing commences on the 1st of June, and it is illegal to catch them in any other way than with rod, hook and line, under a penalty of $10 for each fish illegally caught. Sunday hunting and fishing is prohibited under a penalty of $25. One half of all fines goes to the informer. At this time of the year there is no game of any kind that can be legally hunted or killed. Constables having personal knowledge of violations of law, or if furnished with good evidence that the law has been violated, are bound to make return thereof.

A New National Bank Note.

The comptroller of the currency has, with the approval of the secretary of the treasury, decided to issue five dollar national bank notes upon new plates. The principal features will be an engraved head of the late President Garfield, with the new charter numbers in various portions of the note, and particularly in the border, so that the identity of the note may be easily ascertained from any fragment. The other denominations of national bank notes of the series of 1882 will also be changed, so that they can be readily distinguished from former issues.

—Some of the teamsters of this place are shamelessly and heartlessly cruel in their treatment of the dumb brutes who haul their heavily laden wagons. The heavy vehicles are weighed down with as much as the horses can draw on a level, which they must pull up steep hills, aided, if they falter, by the heavy boots or cruel lash of the driver. Many scenes of this kind, which make the heart sick, are witnessed at the steep eminence leading from the extremity of Spring street to the Lewistown turnpike. Cannot it be stopped?

—Dr. H. K. Hoy, the enterprising and singularly successful young surgeon of this place, Thursday morning at 9 o'clock, removed a tumor from the body of Mrs. Adam Yearick, wife of the late county treasurer. It was the largest tumor that the Doctor has removed in the brief but varied history of his practice. It weighed about eight pounds.

Instructs for Beaver.

The Union Republican County Committee of Union County, the home of Wolfe, met on Tuesday and elected J. Merril Linn Senatorial delegate and Dr. H. C. Brown Representative delegate to the State Convention, instructing them to vote for Gen. James A. Beaver for Governor. Good enough for Union.

—The following lines were written on the death of Nannie Kellerman by her Sunday school teacher. Nannie was a child of Mr. William Kellerman, formerly of Milesburg, and now of Loveville. She died about two months ago.

Farewell, dear Nannie, a long farewell;
'Tis hard to give thee up;
But our Father doeth all things well,
So resigned we drink the bitter cup.

So soon our Father called thee
From this land of pain and care—
Took thee to his own dear bosom—
Thou are safe, sweetly resting there.

Sweet was thy life, dear Nannie,
Thy ways were gentle, mild and kind;
To know thee was to love thee;
Sweet thoughts of thee pass through my mind.

We'll miss thy watching for us, Nannie,
Upon the early Sabbath morn.
Never again we'll sit beside thee
Till home on angel wings we're borne.

But keep thy watch, dear Nannie,
Beside the gate that stands ajar;
Till in our Father's own good time
We'll meet thee again up there.

Farewell, dear Nannie, a long farewell,
Not as the parting of oft before;
But now the long, last farewell
Till we meet thee on that upper shore.

Burned to Death.

Our quiet town was the scene of a sad casualty on Tuesday of last week. Willie Cleaver, a two-year-old colored child, whose parents reside on High street above the old M. E. church, was sitting in a high chair near a table on which was placed a lighted lamp. The little fellow, pleased with the bright flame, drew it toward him, upsetting it in his lap. Instantly the oil ignited, the chair on which he sat and his clothes becoming a mass of seething flames. He was terribly burned about the upper portion of his limbs and those parts of the body that were in contact with the chair. Dr. Harris was called, but all efforts to revive the child from the stupor produced by the shock were futile. He lingered until 2 o'clock this morning when he expired.

The sad occurrence is another lesson to parents to be careful in the use of kerosene oil, especially when children are near.

Attractions of Plants.

There is a difference of opinion as to the healthiness of plants in sleeping rooms, but no difference as to their attractiveness and desirability in the parlor or sitting room. The custom is a good one, and gives cheer and hope even in the dreary months of winter. The plants and flowers displayed in the windows and conservatories of Bellefonte dwellings this spring are certainly as beautiful as ever before. We observe some that afford a scene of beauty upon which the eye might linger for hours without becoming weary. When it requires only a little care and watchfulness, the humblest home should have its house plants, and in the warm months of the year keep them around the home in a good condition to house when Jack Frost threatens mischief.

The Third Volume.

The third volume of the DAILY NEWS began on the 18th inst. Its initial number was cast upon the turbulent sea of journalism two years ago, not without doubts of its continued existence on the part of its proprietors, and amid prophesies of an early decadence from those who were startled at the idea of a daily newspaper in Bellefonte. The public is acquainted with the history of the paper since that time and it is unnecessary to refer to it. We believe it is only necessary to assure our readers that the paper is more prosperous and meets with a greater degree of support at the present time than ever before. We tender our friends the congratulations of the season, hoping that it will be a prosperous year to them and that the NEWS shall continue to be a regular visitor.

National Guard Encampment.

From the Lock Haven Journal we learn that orders will be issued during the present week relative to the summer encampment. About 300 acres of ground have been secured at Lewistown, on the Pennsylvania Railroad. A good portion of it is in sod and a part in corn stubble. It is bounded on one side by woods. Two fine streams of water run close to it—one crosses it and the other flows on one side. Altogether is promises to be an excellent location. The proceeds of the recent sale of condemned arms at the arsenal will be devoted to the purchase of camp equipage.

—Several young ladies, among whom were three or four school teachers, made an excursion to the top of the mountain last Tuesday in search of the dainty and fragrant trailing arbutus. They did not succeed in finding much of it, but their expedition was enjoyable, nevertheless.

—A long, dark red streak of paint has been drawn along the High street exposure of the Brockerhoff House. We thought at first that it was preparatory to the painting of a sign, but time passes and no sign appears. What will it be? We are anxious to know. Don't keep us in suspense any longer.

The New Postage Stamp.

The new five-cent postage stamp has been received at a number of post offices. The following is a description: On a tablet is suspended an incised shield decorated with an oval of heads forming a frame work to the portrait of the late prosident of the United States, James A. Garfield, looking toward the left, engraved in a line. At the base of the oval is a dark six pointed star relieved by a white outline, and in the centre the figure "5." Disposed on the right and left of the star flows a ribbon containing the legend "five cents" in white Roman capitals. Below the star and ribbon, on the lower portion of the tablet, appear the words "U. S. Postage" engraved in dark letters.

—In a private letter to his family Rev. R. Crittenden writes: "Filling my appointments last Sunday, I walked with baggage on the P. & E. R. R. track (there being no other mode of conveyance securable) from Chowwood Station to Sargeants, where I preached to a full house in a new school room and assisted in organizing a new Sunday school; from Sargeants to Westmore, making a distance of travel on foot for the day of not less than eleven miles. At Wetmore I preached again and materially aided one of our Union Sunday schools which has been continued successfully through the winter. This bright Monday morning I am feeling well and thankful for many reasons."

—Our friend, Mr. James Scofield, has recently been producing some very handsome work at his saddler shop on Spring street. All his work is much admired, but there are a few articles which he has recently manufactured to which we desire to draw particular attention. The first is a heavy set of truck harness for the Phœnix Planing Mill. This is extra brass mounted and made very fine. As this harness is used in town at the Phoenix Planing Mill, all who desire to do so may call and inspect it. Mr. John Ardell, who is a connoisseur on such subjects, gives it as his opinion that Mr. S. is a first-class harness maker. Another heavy set of double harness has recently been manufactured for Mr. L. Haas. It is finely mounted with goose neck hussands, of the most modern style. Orders have recently been filled for Gen. James A. Beaver, Thomas McQuillan and Jacob Garbrick, all the parties being well pleased with the way in which the work was performed. Mr. Scofield has also in stock a beautiful line of saddles of all kinds, a specialty being made ladies' side saddles. Persons in attendance at court would do well to call and make a selection for their own use, and even if you do not purchase it will cost nothing to look at them. Mr. Schofield and two assistants are constantly employed, finding it necessary to work three or four hours every night to keep up with their trade. More workmen would be employed if good ones could be procured.

—Mr. John Bartroff is erecting a building for a carriage manufactory on Water street near Mr. Twitmire's residence, and when it is completed he will have unsurpassed facilities for prosecuting his business. The old building occupied by his establishment on Bishop street will be converted into dwelling houses.

—The early worm is short lived when the boy comes round to secure bait for a day's fishing. They are always sure to take enough of that article along, if nothing else.

WARNER'S SAFE KIDNEY & LIVER CURE

Disease is an effect, not a cause. Its origin is within; its manifestations are without. Hence, to cure the disease the Cause must be removed, and in no other way can a cure be effected. WARNER'S SAFE KIDNEY AND LIVER CURE is established on just principles. It realizes that of all diseases arise from deranged kidneys and liver, and it strikes at once at the root of the difficulty. The elements of which it is composed act directly upon these great organs, both as a food and restorer, and by placing them in a healthy condition, drive disease and pain from the system.

For the innumerable troubles caused by unhealthy Kidneys, Liver and Urinary Organs; for the distressing Disorders of Women; for Malaria, and for physical derangements generally, this great remedy has no equal. Beware of imposters, imitations and concoctions said to be just as good.

For Diabetes, ask for WARNER'S SAFE DIABETES CURE. For sale by all dealers.

—All is quiet at Howard.

—One week more and then the circus.

—Eggs are 15 cents per dozen and scarce at that.

—No services will be held in the Episcopal church next Sunday.

—Lawns look lovely. We don't mean the kind the ladies wear, however.

—We have heard of no cases of the "Pink Eye" among horses in this county.

—Mr. Daniel Garman is erecting a dwelling house on High street above the Lutheran church.

—Mr. Mich Graham has been making some improvements on the interior of his barber shop.

—The new tree boxes in front of Mr. Jacob Valentine's residence have been painted a dark brown.

—The latest snow storm last year fell on the 6th of April and thus far this year on the 12th of April.

—The Assistance Fire Company of Johnstown has given a contract for a new engine house to cost $6,750.

—J. P. Wickersham, of this State, has been nominated by the president charge d'affairs to Denmark.

—Saturday was clear and mild throughout the day, but at night a canopy of clouds obscured the sky.

—P. B. Crider & Son, of Snow Shoe, are receiving a new boiler from the firm of Foust & Elliott of Meadville.

—Vennor does not make as many predictions about the weather as formerly, but it changes all the same.

—"Paint" is a warning which hangs prominently in many places. It saves numerous garments from being soiled.

—In consequence of the illness of Rev. Pennypacker, no services were held in the M. E. church Sunday evening.

—The Chief Burgess has been undergoing the hair-clipping process, and now there is not much of that ornamental head crop left.

—Sixty witnesses are in town to give testimony in the famous Huntingdon case to come off during the present term of court.

— Mr. S. H. Baker, of Lock Haven, was in Howard on Wednesday to make some measurements for a new blast pipe at B. Lauth's forge.

—This is not favorable weather for the average young man to attire himself in a white duck suit, go to a picnic and sit down on a custard pie.

—A telegram from Springfield, Ill., says that President Lincoln's remains are completely petrified, the form and even features being preserved.

—In addition to the handsome new porch which Mr. Jacob Valentine is now erecting to his High street residence, he is also setting out five fine young trees.

—Will the Democrats nominate Senator Alexander for Governor? They should choose their best men if they want to make any show at all against Beaver.

—As farmers desire to put in as much time as possible at work during this kind of weather, it is not thought that the present term of court will be largely attended.

—The next meeting of the Y. M. C. A., on Friday evening at 7:15 o'clock, will be held in the new rooms of the Association in the Centre County Banking building.

—The office of the Brockerhoff House is considered to be a beautiful room by all who enter it, and the new marble floor draws forth numerous expressions of admiration.

—Twenty cents per pound is now asked for beef—an increase of four cents on the former price. Well, the increase will benefit the trade of John Wagner and Preacher Garner, as fish is better than beef anyway.

—The abutments for the new county bridge at the nail works are now in process of erection. Spring township is putting up the abutments, Mr. John McDermott having the contract. The bridge proper will be erected at the expense of the county.

—The Bartholomew heirs are confident that they will get the fortune of $8,000,000 awaiting them in Germany, and representatives of the family are on their way to that country to collect it. Nearly all the members of the family reside in this and neighboring counties.

Court Correspondence.

Dear Mr. Editor: As I am in attendance at court this week, I thought I would write you daily letters of the interesting events at that place.

April term of court opened at 10 a. m. Monday with Judge Orvis presiding. After hearing various petitions, motions and granting several rules, court adjourned to 2 p. m.

In the afternoon session the list of Grand Jurors was called, over and out of the twenty four summoned to attend court twenty two were present, but two were afterwards excused by the court, consequently there were but twenty sworn as members of it. George Dale, of College township was made foreman. Proclamation was then made for the constables to present their returns of the various boroughs and townships of the county, after which the newly elected constables were called and sworn in. The court crier was then directed to make proclamation for the traverse jurors to respond to their names when called. Of the forty-eight summoned by the sheriff twenty four answered as being present.

Applications for licenses were then taken up by the court, and those against whom there were no remonstrances and came within the requirements of the law were granted, while those from Snow Shoe, Pine Grove, Philipsburg and Millheim boroughs were held over, because of a general remonstrance from the citizens of the above mentioned places.

A committee of the dear ladies, viz: Mrs. Jno. P. Harris, Mrs. Stewart Lyon, Mrs. D. H. Hastings, Miss Clara Valentine, of Bellefonte, Mrs. Wm. V. Hughes, of Philipsburg, and Miss Kinney, of Philadelphia, were present Much curiosity as to the reason of their presence was aroused, and for the benefit of such I will inform them that it was not to intimidate the brave "four" who had come prepared to fight for the liquor vender, but rather to encourage all efforts that might be made against the granting of the licenses. But notwithstanding the presence of the ladies, the speeches on either side were perhaps the most passionate ones ever made in our court on the subject.

The Grand Jury has up to 12 m. disposed of the following bills of indictment:

Commonwealth vs. Thomas Pearson. Violation of the liquor law. Two indictments. True bills in each.

Commonwealth vs. John H. Harris, assault and battery. True bill.

And then followed some of those wicked cases, the title of the crime it being unnecessary to mention. The parties were:

Commonwealth vs. James Myton. Prosecutrix, Mary C. Nelson. Same vs. William Stark—true bill. Prosecutrix, Elizabeth Hanston. Same vs. Charles H. Sanders—true bill.

Yours respectfully,

ST. CLAIR VERE DE VERE.

—The committee having in charge the series of entertainments for the "piano fund" of the Y. M. C. A., which are to be given under the auspices of the Bellefonte Orchestra, desire to say for the information of all interested, and in order that no reflections may hereafter be cast upon them:

1st, That owing to the limited seating capacity of the hall they can only issue one hundred and seventy five season tickets.

2nd, That the great bulk of these tickets are now taken.

3d, The price of the season tickets are $2.00 each, admitting one person to each of the eight entertainments, and that they will be transferable.

4th, That any person desirous of attending these entertainments and at the same time assisting in a worthy cause should hand in their names for season tickets at once to either of the committee.

J. WILLARD MILLER,
W. S. ZELLER,

—We do not believe there is another town in the country in which the newspapers of the different political parties display a greater amount of courtesy toward one another than in Bellefonte. A pitiable spectable is presented in many places, where the whole stock in trade of a paper seems to be to belittle the organ of the opposition party. This is the case in Williamsport, Clearfield and Huntingdon now and occurs in all places to a greater of less degree. It is quite nauseating in its effect on readers, and the newspapers of other towns will do well to learn the lesson. The papers in Bellefonte see no reason to misrepresent their subscription lists or to quarrel about trifling matters. It is not egotism but the solemn truth that strangers are surprised to find so many respectable, high-toned journals published in so small a town as Bellefonte.

—Renovo, Clinton county, has a score or two of cheap drinking saloons but no bank. What is the lesson this fact teaches?

Death on the Rail.

The sad intelligence was received Monday morning of the death of Mr. J. C. Seibert, of this place. The accident which caused his death occurred at Altoona, about 12 o'clock on Sunday night. In coupling cars he slipped on the rail and the cars passed over his body, mutilating it in a terrible manner. He is a son of Mrs. David Seibert, who resides on Lamb street. The body was brought home Monday evening and the interment will take place from his mother's residence this afternoon. The sorrowing relatives have our hearty sympathy.

The Aloona Tribune of Tuesday contains the following additional particulars of the accident which caused the death of Mr. Seibert:

John C. Seibert, a brakeman on the mountain division of the railroad, was killed at the east end of the tunnel about 1 o'clock yesterday morning. He left this city about 11 o'clock on Sunday night as front brakeman on No. 116 extra freight west, P. Orner conductor. At the east end of the tunnel the train broke, Seibert being on the rear portion. Before the first section had gone far several cars became detached, and having no brakeman on ran down to the rear portion. Seibert was either unaware of the danger or unable to escape. The collision caused a slight wreck and he was found on the track, having been run over about the middle. His remains were brought to this city about 3 o'clock yesterday, coffined by Undertaker Tipton and conveyed to his late residence on Second street between Third and Fourth avnues. He leaves a wife in delicate health and one child. His father-in-law Mr. William Shope, lives with his family in the same house. The deceased came to this city from Bellefonte a few months ago, and his remains were taken there on the 6:45 train last evening. He is only 22 years of age, but his integrity of character, correct habits and industrious disposition had won the respect of all his acquaintances.

Death of J. H. Vosburg, Esq.

We much regret to learn from the Watchman of the death, on the 28th of March, in Philadelphia, of the gentleman whose name heads this article. He had been in Philadelphia four months under medical treatment. At the time of his death his daughter Cornelia was the only member of his family present. His remains were interred in Philadelphia. Mr. Vosburg was a lawyer, poet and scholar, and the author of a couple of printed volumes of poetry, among which are to be found some very beautiful things. He was a short hand writer, and was for years court reporter of this district. During the war he was he was a correspondent in the field of the New York Herald and other metropolitan papers, and wrote many thrilling and graphic letters descriptive of the battles and operations of the army of the Potomac During his residence in this place he and his family formed many lasting friendships. All who knew him will sympathise with the family in the removal of its much-beloved head.

Wedding in the Catholic Church.

The Roman Catholic church of this place was thronged with the youth and beauty of our town yesterday morning to witness the nuptial ceremony of Mr. Jacob Snyder to Miss Teresa Hazel and Mr. Rosenhoover to Miss Mary Steinkerchner. The ceremony was long and imposing, and was performed in the most impressive manner by Rev. Father McArdle, assisted at the altar by four small boys, all dressed in white surplices, that of the preist being quite elegant and, covered with a crimson silk overgarment, on which was the figure of a cross. The brides were beautifully attired in brown silk dresses and brown straw hats. Mr. and Mrs. Rosenhoover departed that morning for the home of the groom in Frenchville, where a reception was tendered them in the evening. Mr. and Mrs. Snyder departed that evening on a brief wedding tour. We tender them all our congratulations.

—A Mr. Graves—a drummer—who has been traveling in the interest of a mercantile firm for many years and frequently stops in Bellefonte, made one of his visits to this place yesterday, departing this morning. He is a sterling Christian gentleman and his visits are always hailed with delight by Christian people, by whom he is well known. Wherever he goes—in the cars, at the hotel and at public places—he distributes tracts, always having a large supply with him. He has continued this practice uninterruptedly for years and many are the experiences he can relate of rebuffs and discouragements which he has met with. But he continues on his chosen way, bold as a lion, and is constantly gaining the thorough respect of those whom he meets. Success to him.

—John B. Linn, of Bellefonte, ex-Secretary of the Commonwealth, passed through here on Saturday on his way home from Lewisburg. Mr. Linn is hard at work preparing the histories of Centre and Clinton counties for an eastern publisher.—Williamsport G. & B.

The New Comet.

That there is a comet somewhere in the sky seems to be certain; that it can even now be seen with a telescope we infer from what we read, and that it will be visible to the naked eye during next month is the general supposition of those who have heard or read of it. It is a large comet and will approach very near the sun. No astronomer has succeeded in identifying it with any previous comet, and it is probable that this is its first visit to the solar system, at least since men have made records of celestial phenomena. It is not impossible that it last exhibited the glories of its train to the inhabitants of the worlds revolving around some distant fixed star. The question is frequently asked, "How large will the comet be?' It is impossible to say more than that judging from the brightness of its nucleus and the present rate of increase in the size of its tail, it ought to be a more brilliant comet than that of last summer. But nobody can promise that it will be, because the nature of comets and the laws that govern the development of their tails are not well enough understood to enable astronomers to make positive predictions concerning their appearance. This comet's position when nearing the sun will not be such as to give us the best view of its tail. The comet of 1858, like this one, was watched from the time it appeared as a faint object in the telescope until it hung like a great band of light in the Western heavens. We almost wish it would run into the world and cause a mash-up in things terrestrial, but for the sake of wicked Democratic editors we will suppress our desires in that direction.

Sheriff's Sales.

Sheriff T. J. Dunkle, on Saturday, disposed of the following properties:

Two lots of ground belonging to Amos Lee of Potter township to Jacob Baker for $110.

A lot of ground near Snow Shoe Intersection, owned by Thomas Shuff to John H. Stover for $689.

Seventy-two acres of ground in Marion township belonging to Wm. Allison, Jr., to John Hoy, Jr., for $1476.

William Allison's farm near Howard sold to Samuel Reber and Mary Ann Reber for $2365.

A house and lot in Boggs township belonging to William Robinson to John Fetzer for $2202.

On Monday the following Sheriff's sales were made:

A tract of land in Union township owned by Isreal Hoover, deceased, sold by his administrator, C. Hoover, to Jacob Hoover for $500.

Another tract belonging to the above parties to John Irwin, Jr., for $500.

Two tracts of land in Curtin township owned by Rob't Woods, James Woods, Jr., and James Woods, Sr., to John A. Otto and John R. Hazelet, assignees, for $75.

The Tomb.

Mr. George Walker died at his late residence in the rear of the Bellefonte Academy, on Sunday evening at 7 o'clock. He had been ill since last April, his sickness being caused, we are informed, by wounds received while a soldier in the late rebellion. His body bears two marks made by Rebel bullets. Of course, he drew a small pension, but it terminated with his death, although it would seem that his widow should continue to receive it. He also leaves one child.

A meeting of Gregg Post was called for Monday evening to make arrangements for his funeral, which took place Tuesday at 2 o'clock p. m. He was not a member of the Post, but the fact that the deceased was a brave soldier is sufficient to enlist the sympathy and aid of that praise-worthy organization.

—A certain Bellefonte clergyman is reported to have remarked to his congregation on Sunday morning that he "understood the devil and his imps would visit this place on May 1st," alluding, we presume, to the circus which exhibits here on that date. Batchellor & Doris advertise many marvelous things, but the "devil and his imps" are not down on the bills—at least not on any that we've seen. It is possible, however, that the reverend gentleman was speaking in the figurative sense.

—'Can I hire you to do some work for me next week?' said a man on Allegheny street to-day to another man whom he knew was hunting work. 'What time next week did you want the work done?' 'Why, all week.' 'Well, I don't know about that, boss; there's the circus on Monday and the rest I have to take on Tuesday. What do you say to next Wednesday?' The employer turned away in disgust.

—The hotel property on the corner of Allegheny and Bishop streets, formerly known as the Butts House, is receiving extensive improvements.

To Correspondents.

J. P.—No, you will have several months in which to reform in and make up for your past wickedness. The comet will not strike us before fall.

Rex.—Served you right, and the sexton should have aided you in your exit with the toe of his boot. Dropping a soft-boiled egg into the contribution box, sir, is a serious offense.

F. A. R.—If she has black curly hair and eyes, as you affirm, you should secure her by all means. We cannot say what sort of a wife a curly eyed girl would make, but she would be a startling curiosity and a valuable possession.

Student.—If you have rich and influential relatives here you might possibly get the office of High Constable. It is the only high toned office in which there is a vacancy that we know of at present. There's no money in it, but any amount of exciting sport.

Anxious.—As you say it will be expensive for you to come to the show with your entire family. About the only thing we can suggest to lighten the expense is for you to bring your gingerbread with you, give peanut stands the cold shoulder and look not upon the circus lemonade when it is red, for it deceiveth like a land agent and biteth the wallet "allfiredly."

Rival.—The only proper way to test the matter is to propose. You have little to fear from your rival, if your account of his history be true. The fact that his "smeller" is decorated with a half-ounce wart, and that he was once convicted of stealing shingles, gives you the bulge on him, and will no doubt tip the beam in your favor.

Pugilistic.—You are mistaken. It couldn't have been Al. Dale, of this place, as that gentleman never entered the prize ring. He knocked a fellow named Peters out of time, a year or two ago, in one round, he using bare knuckles and his opponent a billiard cue. But that wasn't a fight for a prize. It was a fight, on Dale's part, for a trunk, and against imposition.

—Lawrence Brown has recently purchased and put in his coal office a very elegant new safe from the manufactory of Morris & Ireland, of Boston. It was ordered, we believe, through the agency represented by Mr. Bond Valentine. Mr. Brown is well pleased with his purchase, not only as an ornamental piece of furniture, but also because he has implicit faith that it will keep in safety all the valuables which he shall put into it.

—We suggest that a crossing be laid on High street between the new Centre County Bank building and Mr. David Wagner's residence. We believe it would be beneficial to the interests of the bank, and also a great convenience to many people who have heretofore been compelled either to go to the other crossing or wade through the mud.

—One of the finest eating houses in this place is that located on Bishop street and conducted by Mr. George Blackford. He serves meals at all hours of the day in a very neat and cleanly manner. Strangers and persons from the country who are stopping in town can procure a refreshing meal at Blackford's restaurant at extremely reasonable rates.

—We all love bright, pleasant weather, but it would perhaps be better for the morals of the community if Sundays were disagreeable and stormy. A bright and beautiful day, such as last Sunday, tempts too many persons to indulge in pleasure riding, trifling conversation and such unseemly recreations.

—About every newspaper in the State has announced that the Pennsylvania Reserves will hold their annual reunion in this place this summer and that the ladies are making active preparations for the event, and although we hear nothing about it at home, we are almost inclined to believe it.

—The second annual convention of the State Constitutional Amendment Association will be held in the Presbyterian church, Huntingdon, on May 9 and 10. The movement is emphatically a Christian one and a large number of orders and societies will take part in it.

—Even the forests bow down at the name of Beaver. Last week Forest county held a Republican convention and instructed her Senatorial and Representative delegates to vote for the gallant General in the State Convention.

—The annual session of the state council of the Order of United American Mechanics will be held this year in Bethlehem, beginning on the 2d of May.

—There is a very jolly looking crowd of people in town.

Personal Mention.

George Potter, Jr., is in town.

Font. W. Crider spent Sunday in Lock Haven.

Robert Larimer, Esq., is a juror in court this week.

Alderman Noble, of Lock Haven, was in town Monday on business.

Miss Clara Milliken is at home after quite a long absence in the city of Philadelphia.

Mr. Charles Smith, formerly clerk at Valentines' store, is now employed at the car works.

Mr. Henry Foutz, the enterprising planing mill man of Curwensville, has been in town since Saturday.

Mr. Frank Montgomery departed for Philadelphia on Thursday night. He will be home in a few days.

Mrs. Hughes, wife of W. V. Hughes the contractor of Philipsburg, is in town on a brief visit to her friends.

Mrs. A. G. Curtin, wife of ex-Governor Curtin, is now at home, having been absent most of the past winter.

We believe that Mr. Ed. Powers is always vivacious, and it is no indication that something will come off in the near future.

News from Mr. Hayes Schroyer, now of Lancaster, informs us that he is prospering in his new position and that he likes it very well.

Judge Larimer highly appreciates the fare at the Brockerhoff House and Monday evening consumed four waffles in attestation of that fact.

Rev. E. B. Morris, pastor of the Baptist churches of this place and Milesburg, has resigned, and will leave for other scenes of labor in about two weeks.

Mr. George Burnside, who has been confined to the house by illness during most of the past winter, is, we are happy to record, rapidly improving, and the advent of warm weather is expected to make him all right again.

R. M. Magee, Esq., returned last Friday after a long absence on insurance business in various portions of the State. One of the newspapers of Montrose, where he spent some time, pays him a high compliment for his gentlemanly qualities and business abilities. He represents the Brooklyn Life Insurance Company, and while in Montrose he paid $1010.17 to Mrs. P. T. Moran, of that place, being the insurance on the life of her husband, recently deceased.

Mr. Edward Hess, son of Daniel Hess, Esq., of Linden Hall, returned home recently after a protracted journey through various Southern and Western States. While absent he traversed Florida and Texas, stopping at all the intermediate large cities, and tarrying some time in the National Capital. His journey was undertaken for the benefit of his health, he having been troubled with some lung affection for an indefinite period. He also consulted several noted physicians. We regret that his efforts have not thus far resulted in any material improvement of his health, and trust that the quiet and rest which he now enjoys at his home in Linden Hall will accomplish the desired result.

It Was Friday.

A colored pair visited Alderman Blair's office Friday afternoon, with the intention of having themselves united in marriage. It suddenly occurred to one of them that the day was Friday, and, without a moment's hesitation, they resolved to postpone the ceremony! And yet, missionaries are sent off to foreign countries in search of the heathen.—Williamsport Gazette and Bulletin.

—J. H. Sands, the proprietor of the Allegheny street bakery, is always making improvements about his establishment. He is now erecting an awning to protect the delicate and elegant productions of his bakery from Old Sol's warm rays.

MARRIED.

WAGNER—WEAVER.—At Howard, on the 16th of April, by Rev. J. Stine, Mr J. I. Wagner and Miss Sarah A. Weaver, both of Marsh Creek, Centre county, Pa.

WILLIAMS—STIVER.—By W. S. Williams, J. P., Mr. John Williams and Miss Annie Stiver, both of Huston township, Centre county.
